Introductory refers to something that serves as a beginning or introduction to what follows. It can be written or spoken and is used to provide general information, setting the stage for more detailed explanations. In the context of education, introductory courses or lectures are designed for beginners who have no prior knowledge of a subject. In terms of products or services, an introductory offer is a special price or promotion available for a limited time, often when a product is first released. This can be used to attract customers and generate interest in what's being offered. The word "introductory" has its roots in Late Latin and Latin, with the prefix "intro-" meaning "to the inside" and "ducere" meaning "to lead".
