Saturday 28 June: The Immaculate Heart of Mary Vigil Mass of Sts Peter and Paul 5.00pm STM: Sr Margaret Byrne (Jubilee) 6.30pm ST: Int: Prop Populo		This weekend we keep the Solemnity of Sts Peter and Paul, and as such we celebrate not just them in their own capacity as great proclaimers of the Gospel, but we celebrate too the witness of the Church in her own identity as the community which emerged from their testimony. The Greek word for Church is ekklesia which is a composite of two other Greek words, ek meaning “out of” and kaleo meaning “to call”. In other words, ekklesia describes the concept of being “gathered together” or of being “called out”. So our own experience of Church will by definition, contain these two elemental ideas. It is the two apostles we celebrate today who demonstrate this with great distinction.
Sunday 29 June : Sts Peter and Paul 9.30am SH: Int: Peter Pullen 11.00am ST: Int: Michael Miji, Baldwin Miji & all Family members RIP		We know all about Peter's calling and the many trials and tribulations his following of Jesus caused him. From the outset, his own response to this call was hesitant and uncertain. “Leave me Lord for I am a sinful man” was his answer to Jesus as recorded by Luke in his Gospel. The experience of encountering Jesus left him overawed by what he had seen. A miraculous draft of fish, overwhelming in its abundance, made him realise that what he had witnessed was beyond his own capacity to comprehend. Yet Jesus knew in spite of Peter's words, that the call he set before him would be met, and that however haltingly Peter's initial response was, the fulfilment of his commission would change the course of not just his life, but the course of the world. Similarly with Paul, a man steeped in the history of his commitment to his upbringing as a Jew. In the very context of his ambition to persecute the fledgling Church, while on the road to Damascus, he was stunned when a calling out came to him and stopped him in his tracks. It was a revelation which initially overwhelmed him, but then brought forth from him the great witness that sent him around the Mediterranean, gathering and forming new communities which through his preaching and writing, lived out the message of the gospel and thereby changed a whole civilisation.
Monday 30 June: Feria 9.30am ST. 3.00pm ST: Divine Mercy Chaplet		So for us, this day, this feast becomes a celebration in which we are asked to reflect upon our own response to our “calling out”. The Church, all of us who are her members, we are the body of Christ. All of us “called out” to be gathered as proclaimers of the Word. Our witness in the world is our response to our calling. Yes we can be overwhelmed by the awesome responsibility which we may feel is placed upon us, but let us not be put off by such thoughts. We may feel metaphorically imprisoned by our situations but such barriers will be removed if we trust in the presence of the Lord alongside us, as Peter came to understand after his release from jail and as Paul recounts: “the Lord stood by me and strengthened me so that through me the message might be proclaimed”. We are all Peter and Paul, amazed by the things the Lord Jesus can do in and through us, his Church.

 Today we keep the Solemnity of Saints Peter and Paul, the great founding apostles who proclaimed the gospel with great courage and vigour. ✠ We continue to pray for our new Pope Leo XIV as he guide and leads the Church is her missionary activity. May the example of both Saint Peter and Saint Paul inspire him to proclaim the message of the centrality of Jesus Christ to the world and so bring people from every walk of life to become his disciples. May we too on this day renew our own commitment to live out the gospel message in all its fulness just as St Peter and St Paul.
