

The Essential Upgrade Checklist

Is Outdated Software Holding You Back?

The business world is constantly evolving. Businesses and their software need to be able to keep up with changing industry requirements and changes in the business as they grow. Outdated technology is one way to fall behind, lose money, and waste time.

Leverage the checklist below to determine if your business is in need of a software upgrade:

- Mobility. Your data is only available on-premise and is not easily accessible on-the-go.
- Scalability. Your current software solution cannot easily handle additional volume or additional users.
- Accessibility. Some key information is only accessible by one person, your data is siloed.
- Connectivity. More than one internal solution does not integrate or sync with your ERP.
- Accuracy. More than one of your processes require manual entry and/or are prone to errors.
- Visibility. Reporting and key metrics are compiled manually, and you lack real-time visibility and KPIs.
- Quality. My team manually manages compliance, reports, taxes, and documentation.
- Performance. My system lags, operates slow, or crashes more than I would like it to.
- Security. The software my business uses is from 2020 or earlier, increasing my risk for cyber threats.
- Efficiency. Our business is lacking the automation, tools, and functionality needed to do our jobs more efficiently.

If you answered yes to more than three of these questions, it may be time to consider a software upgrade OR a replacement of your existing software with a more modern solution.
