An Exclusive Update On The Difference Your Compassion Is Making For Children In Latin America

Because of your faithful generosity

A father's new legacy is shaping his children's future

Wilson didn't grow up with the guidance of a loving father. He had no one to show him what a life of faith could look like.

Living on very little, life was hard — and Wilson carried a lot of anger. He often took his frustration out on those closest to him, something he deeply regrets today. When he met God as an adult, that anger began to change — not overnight, but step by step.

He and his wife, Graciela, committed to raising their five children with the values and love they had found in Christ.

That commitment hasn't always been easy. Providing for a large family on a single income means constant sacrifices. But Wilson isn't doing it alone.

Because of you, three of his children can attend Yeshua School — a place where they are surrounded by caring teachers, learning about God's love, and growing into young people who can lead with compassion and integrity.

Two of their older siblings have already graduated and are pursuing university degrees — an achievement Wilson once thought impossible.

Your generosity helps create this safe, faith-filled environment where Wilson's children can learn, dream, and prepare for the future. You're not just supporting a school; you're standing with parents like Wilson who are determined to give their children what they themselves never had.

This spring, you helped Yeshua School grow stronger.

We set out to raise $30,000 for construction — and generous friends like you gave $39,320. That's nearly a third more than we hoped for, creating safer, stronger spaces for students like Wilson's children. Thank you for building a brighter future.

Children are learning and growing in faith — even through challenge

Blanca

Earlier this year, Bethel School in Nicaragua faced a moment of crisis.

Amid rising inflation, political unrest, and ongoing economic strain, the school's future hung in the balance.

That could have meant 120 children losing their place of safety, learning, and faith.

But thanks to the generosity of caring supporters like you, Bethel School has stayed open. Your kindness is giving students a dependable place to learn, grow, and receive Christ-centred education — even as difficulties continue.

Life in Nicaragua remains difficult, and the pressures on schools are ongoing. There are no quick fixes. But for students, having a place where they are known, cared for, and encouraged makes a real difference.

Blanca, a bright and curious student, is just one example.

Blanca is still learning and thriving — thanks to your generosity.

Bethel School's doors remain open, despite growing government pressure.

She's still in class, surrounded by teachers who know her by name, and rooted in an environment where she can learn and thrive.

For children like her, having that consistency — being able to keep coming to school, day after day, month after month — makes all the difference.

Thank you for standing in the gap. For Blanca, and for every student still learning because of kind people like you.

"I've prayed for years to be part of this work."

Sophia has sponsored children in Paraguay since she was young. This year, she spent three months serving at La Amistad School — helping in the classroom and seeing firsthand how faith and love shape students' lives.

"These people, while materially poor, are so spiritually rich. It's a blessing to see children growing in faith and surrounded by love."
