The Dreamseller is a three-novel series by Brazilian author Augusto Cury, a doctor, psychiatrist, psychotherapist, and publishing phenomenon. The first book released in the US market, "The Dreamseller: The Calling," introduces characters that appear throughout the saga. Through heartfelt storytelling, Cury explores the effects of modern society on our emotions and lives. In the series' first installment, a mysterious stranger saves a despairing man from suicide, drawing parallels between modern societies' descent into chaos and individual emotional struggles. This enigmatic figure charms people and frees them from routine, but also creates enemies, leaving readers questioning whether he's an authority or a madman. The book will leave you laughing, crying, and thinking. The second novel, "The Anonymous Revolution," continues the story of this mysterious Master as he rebuilds his life by selling dreams. It shows how each person's path is complex, marked by tears and joy, tranquility and anxiety, sanity and madness. In the final installment, "Sower of Ideas," an internationally powerful man finds that living in the moment can be fun, but success is cyclical. Like the growth and fall of leaves. He navigates distant lands, battles, and personal struggles to discover that everything he seeks is closer than he thought. The Dreamseller novels have been massive successes worldwide, with Augusto Cury's books available in over 50 countries. The series has conquered markets in Latin America, Portugal, Asia, Russia, China, Korea, and Spain, where it even topped the bestseller charts. Dr. Augusto Cury is a renowned psychiatrist, researcher, and writer who has achieved massive success globally, with over 70 countries having his books translated and more than 35 million copies sold in Brazil alone. He is considered the best-selling psychiatrist of the past two decades. Cury is the creator of the Multifocal Intelligence Theory (MIT), which focuses on understanding human thought processes and the role of the self as a mind manager. His work has been adopted by postgraduate programs, including the University of São Paulo. As an honor member of the European Intelligence Institute's Academy of Geniuses, Cury offers training to diverse audiences worldwide. He was awarded by the Chinese Academy of Letters for his book "The Dream Seller" in 2009 and had it adapted into a film by Warner/Fox and a theater production. Additionally, he has been nominated for the prestigious Bibi Ferreira Award in Brazil. Cury's books have been widely successful, including "The Smartest Man in History," "Never Give Up on Your Dreams," and "The Living Forest Team." These titles have also been adapted into theater productions, further cementing their popularity. He is the creator of pioneering projects such as the School of Intelligence, which has educated over 400,000 students in Brazil; The Academy of Emotion Management; and MultiSer Emotion Management Center. These programs aim to help children, youth, and adults manage their emotions, reduce stress and anxiety, and build healthy relationships. Cury is also the creator of the free social program "You Are Irreplaceable," which aims to be an emotional vaccine against suicide. His work has had a profound impact on millions of people worldwide, transforming their personal and professional lives through his trainings and teachings.
