

Continue

Judith walthers mesa az

Judith walthers mesa. Judith mesa az. Judith walthers mesa arizona. Judith walthers az.

A woman was sentenced to life in prison on Friday for the 2014 murder of a Mesa man she had been staying with, court officials said.Judith Elaine Walthers was sentenced for first-degree murder under the terms of a plea deal that call for her to serve at least 25 years in prison before any possible release, court officials said..Walthers was sentenced for the January 2014 murder of 54-year-old Kevin Worzalla, who was found dead inside his Mesa residence.Police found his body with signs of trauma after being asked to check on him by family members, who were concerned because they hadn't heard from him for a week.Police said his vehicle and other property were missing from his apartment and that Walthers, who was 20 at the time, had been staying with Worzalla. Walthers' DNA was found on bloody items located at the crime scene, officials said.In addition to pleading guilty to the murder, Walthers also entered guilty pleas for several other counts related to the crime, which will have to be served consecutively on top of the murder sentence, court officials said. They are:Sale or transportation of dangerous drugs, 8 years.Theft of a means of transportation, 4 years.Escape, second-degree, 2 years.READ MORE.Mom sentenced to life in prison in death of 3-year-old girlDoctor accused of having wife murdered to protect drug ring kills himselfPedestrian hit, killed after being pushed during horseplay A sentencing hearing is underway in Arizona for admitted killer Judith Walthers. She pleaded guilty to murder charges for her role in the death of Kevin Worzalla, age 54, in early 2014. Walthers, who was 20 when she was arrested days after the crime, had been staying with the victim on and off at the time of his death. Her DNA was discovered on bloody objects at the crime scene. Walthers was ultimately accused of beating the victim to death with a wrench while he slept in his Mesa, Arizona apartment, taking the victim's truck and driving it around town for about a week, and also taking some of the victim's property, including a rare coin collection. Police also found evidence Walthers tried to clean the crime scene and items related to the crime. Walthers originally faced first-degree murder and other charges related to the theft of the collection, the truck, and for trying to scrub the crime scene. She originally entered a not guilty plea, but eventually changed her mind. Judith Walthers is a killer from Arizona who was convicted of the murder of Kevin Worzalla According to court documents Judith Walthers was living with fifty four year old Kevin Worzalla when something went wrong. Walthers would attack Kevin Worzalla who would be beaten and stabbed several times before Judith stole his truck and other belongings and fled. Family of Kevin Worzalla would become concerned when they had not heard from him for a couple of times and when police performed a welfare check they would discover his body. Judith Walthers would be arrested, convicted and sentenced to life in prison with no chance of parole for twenty five years Last Name First Name Middle Initial WALTHERS JUDITH EGender Height (inches)Weight Hair Color FEMALE 65 127 BROWNEye Color Ethnic Origin Custody Class Admission BROWN CAUCASIAN Close/High 01/31/2018Projected Eligible Release Date Prison Release Date Release Type Life SENTENCE EXPIRATION Prosecutors say an Arizona woman has been sentenced to life in prison for killing a man and taking his truck. The Maricopa County Attorney's Office said 24-year-old Judith Walthers was sentenced Friday in the death of 54-year-old Kevin Worzalla. Authorities say they were called to a Mesa apartment in February 2014 to check the welfare of a tenant who had not been heard from for several days. They found Worzalla's body with multiple injuries and stab wounds. Neighbors told police Walthers had been storing her belongings at Worzalla's home and had been using his vehicle. At the time, police had said DNA from Walthers was found on bloody items at the crime scene and there was evidence that she allegedly attempted to clean the crime scene. A woman was sentenced to life in prison on Friday for the 2014 murder of a Mesa man she had been staying with, court officials said. Judith Elaine Walthers was sentenced for first-degree murder under the terms of a plea deal that call for her to serve at least 25 years in prison before any possible release, court officials said. Walthers was sentenced for the January 2014 murder of 54-year-old Kevin Worzalla, who was found dead inside his Mesa residence. Police found his body with signs of trauma after being asked to check on him by family members, who were concerned because they hadn't heard from him for a week. Police said his vehicle and other property were missing from his apartment and that Walthers, who was 20 at the time, had been staying with Worzalla. Walthers' DNA was found on bloody items located at the crime scene, officials said. In addition to pleading guilty to the murder, Walthers also entered guilty pleas for several other counts related to the crime, which will have to be served consecutively on top of the murder sentence, court officials said. They are: Sale or transportation of dangerous drugs, 8 years. Theft of a means of transportation, 4 years. Escape, second-degree, 2 years. oday Judith Walthers (D.O.B. 05/26/1993) was sentenced to Life in Prison for First Degree Murder, in addition to four years for Theft of Means of Transportation and two years for Second Degree Escape all connected to the death of 54-year-old Kevin Worzalla. "Today's sentencing holds this defendant accountable for her shocking lack of regard for human life and the threat she has proven to be to the community," said Maricopa County Attorney Bill Montgomery. On February 4, 2014 officers were called to a Mesa apartment to the check the welfare of a tenant that the landlord had not seen for several days. Inside officers found the body of Worzalla with multiple injuries and stab wounds. Neighbors told officers Walthers, who was homeless, had been storing her belongings at Worzalla's home and had been using his vehicle, which was now missing. A day later officers located Walthers and arrested her for an outstanding warrant for previous drug charges. While in custody she claimed she had a medical emergency and was taken to a nearby hospital. Once at the hospital she escaped from her escort and tried to hide in the ceiling of the emergency room. Family and friends of the suspect told investigators Walthers liked the thrill of robbing people and had made several comments to them about wanting to "kill an old man" for his truck prior to the murder. Updated [hour]:[minute] [AMPM] [timezone], [monthFull] [day], [year] PHOENIX (AP) — Prosecutors say an Arizona woman has been sentenced to life in prison for killing a man and taking his truck.The Maricopa County Attorney's Office said 24-year-old Judith Walthers was sentenced Friday in the death of 54-year-old Kevin Worzalla.Authorities say they were called to a Mesa apartment in February 2014 to check the welfare of a tenant who had not been heard from for several days. They found Worzalla's body with multiple injuries and stab wounds.Neighbors told police Walthers had been storing her belongings at Worzalla's home and had been using his vehicle.At the time, police had said DNA from Walthers was found on bloody items at the crime scene and there was evidence that she allegedly attempted to clean the crime scene.