Making Decisions

Life presents us with the opportunity to choose to settle a personal problem, take a new job, join this organization or not, continue your education, marry, have children, care for your family, help a neighbor. Each day's decisions say something about the person you are or hope to become.

"How am I to know if I'm making the right decisions according to the will of God?" Thomas Merten in his book, New Seeds of Contemplation wrote, "Whatever is demanded by truth, by justice, by mercy, or by love must surely be taken to be willed by God." Here are some other thoughts on uniting personal decisions with the will of God.

Gather data and list your options – with their pluses and minuses. Narrow your choices to those acceptable to your moral standards. Talk over your options with your family, close friends and, if possible, anyone who is likely to be affected. Take as much time as reasonable. But once you've decided, act on your decision, and remember, at each step, pray for God's guidance in making your decision. The final test for hearing God's will in making your decision makes you happy and brings new life to you and others. After reading the column, I realized the following. Choose to love, rather than hate. Choose to smile, rather than frown. Choose to build, rather than destroy. Choose to persevere, rather than to quit. Choose to praise, rather than gossip. Choose to forgive, rather than curse. Above all, choose to pray, rather than despair.

All of us have to make decisions during our lifetime. The only way you will find peace, happiness, and love in your life is to be sure that God is always part of your decisions. Teach your children that from an early age, and they will grow up with a peaceful mind and a hopeful heart.

May God help all of us make good decisions.
