

Our Schools.
Our Future:

Conversations with the Chancellor

Dear NYCPS Community,

You're invited to join

Chancellor Kamar H. Samuels

for a series of in-person conversations across New York City focused on the future of our public schools.

Our Schools. Our Future:
Conversations with the Chancellor

is a citywide engagement series bringing students, families, educators, staff, and community partners together for honest dialogue about where our schools are today and where we must go next.

Across ten stops in every corner of the city, Chancellor Samuels will engage directly with communities to reflect on what safety, academic rigor, and true integration look like in practice, and how we strengthen our system for the years ahead. These conversations are designed to elevate lived experiences, surface shared priorities, and inform the Chancellor's early direction for NYC Public Schools. This will also be an opportunity for families to share ideas for improving family empowerment in NYCPS, to ensure that family and community voices are at the table.

This will be a space for meaningful dialogue and collective reflection, so that we can shape the future together.

In partnership,
New York City Public Schools

Our Schools. Our Future: Conversations with the Chancellor

Join Chancellor Kamar H. Samuels for in-person community conversations across New York City about the future of our public schools.

Grounded in the Chancellor's vision, these conversations will focus on safety, academic rigor, and true integration, while uplifting family empowerment and community voice.
