Mastering the art of... phone location

I don't claim to be a master of many things. I'm rather more of a Jill of all trades.

I'm simply interested in everything, which stops me from being an expert in anything.

Except for maybe two things. I like to think I'm rather a master of words. I've always loved words - even as a young kid.

But this column isn't about my excellent excelling with words. It's about another area in which I perpetually shine.

It's a rather specialized genre, which takes no time, talent or effort. In fact, it's quite the opposite.

It isn't about creating, acquiring or even discovering new things. It's about losing them.

To be more specific: I excel at losing my phone.

There, I said it out loud.

Now, losing my phone doesn't really mean losing my phone, in the purest sense of the phrase. My phone isn't really lost. In fact, it is always, or at least most often, nearby.

Misplaced would be a better term, because I've never really lost possession of my phone. I have, if I am being honest, simply put it somewhere and then two minutes later can't remember quite where that somewhere might be.

I can lose my phone in a crowded room, but even more exceptionally, I can lose it in a room where I am sitting, on the couch, all by myself.

And that takes talent.

I think we can all agree on that.

Sometimes, when my phone is lost, I will Discover more festive recipe ideas and where to find this traceable raw honey by visiting BusyBeeHoney.com.

HONEY-ROASTED TURKEY BREAST

Servings: 8

- 1 full turkey breast (6-7 pounds), bone in, skin on, fully thawed
- kosher salt
- freshly ground black pepper

Glaze:

- 1/2 cup Busy Bee Raw Honey
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
- 3 tablespoons apple cider vinegar
- 1 teaspoon kosher salt
- 1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 3 sprigs fresh thyme
- 1 clove garlic, peeled and crushed

DIRECTIONS

Preheat oven to 500 F.

Season turkey liberally on both sides with salt and pepper; let sit at room temperature 1 hour in large roasting pan with roasting rack.

To make glaze: In medium saucepan over high heat, combine honey, orange juice, mustard, vinegar, salt, pepper, thyme and garlic.

Bring to boil then reduce heat to medium and simmer 15 minutes, or until reduced by two-thirds. Remove from heat and set aside.

Place roasting pan in center of oven and reduce temperature to 350 F.

After 45 minutes, brush on layer of glaze. Cook 10 minutes.

Brush on another layer of glaze. Cook 10 minutes.

Brush on one more layer of glaze, cooking until internal temperature of turkey registers 165 F.

Remove from oven and let rest 30 minutes.

Cut meat from bone, slice and drizzle with remaining glaze before serving.

find that I have been sitting on it.

Other times, it just blends in with the couch seat.

In the most egregious of instances, it has slid under a pillow.

There are many places besides a couch where a completely responsible and competent person can misplace a phone. (Although I’m sure you can’t personally relate.)

Sometimes I leave it on the counter in the bathroom (not anywhere near the toilet) or on the bed or on the kitchen island. I’ve even left it in my purse after a grocery shopping excursion.

I’ve also left it in the car a time or two. That’s a tricky one because when I lose my phone, I usually assume it is in the house. Going out into the garage is a last-ditch effort to engage location services.

I usually ask someone nearby to call me, but that tactic is often wrought with a lack of logic. It goes without saying that when I misplace my phone the ringer is always off, so when I ask someone to call me, all we can hope for is a vibrational buzz.

I’ve listened for that small, quiet buzz an embarrassing number of times. Too many to count.

And here’s the thing: I am not a lackadaisical user of my phone. I am quite dependent on it. I carry it with me wherever I go. It is almost like an extension of my own being.

Which only exacerbates the angst felt when I lose or (better put) misplace it.

I’m sure you can’t even begin to relate. Thank you for bearing with me in this confession regarding my lack of phone preservation skills.

And if you ever do call me, and I don’t answer... well, suffice to say you now understand why.

Renowned Texas Glassblowers to Collaborate in Fredericksburg Nov. 28-30

Fredericksburg Glassblowing at Enchanted Fredericksburg Ranch (EFR) is thrilled to announce a groundbreaking collaboration between two of Texas’s most acclaimed glass artists, Justin Ginsberg and Clifton Crofford. For the first time ever, these talented glassblowers will join forces during Thanksgiving weekend while offering free glassblowing demonstrations that promise to dazzle the public. Their free glassblowing demonstrations will be on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 28th and 29th from 12 pm to 4 pm, and on Sunday, Nov. 30th from 10 am to 2 pm.

Ginsberg, head of the glass art studios and curriculum at the University of Texas at Arlington, has showcased his innovative work in prestigious museums across the globe. Crofford, founder of SiNaCa Studios in Fort Worth, is known for his community-driven approach to glass art.

“We are honored to have Justin and Clif collaborating artistically for the first time in our hot shop,” said Paul Simonette, co-owner of Fredericksburg Glassblowing.

“We’ve worked together professionally through our respective institutions, but Thanksgiving weekend, we get to unleash our creativity together in a vibrant setting,” noted Ginsberg.

“It’s a fantastic opportunity for us to connect with visitors and share our artistic process in the beautiful Hill Country,” Crofford added

An interdisciplinary artist, writer, educator and curator, Ginsberg blends history with innovation in his striking work. He holds degrees from both the University of Texas at Austin and the University of Texas at Arlington, where he now serves as Associate Professor and Head of the Glass Area. His works are part of elite collections, including the Museum Kunstpalast in Germany and The Frye Art Museum in Washington. He has exhibited at the Amon Carter Museum of American Art in Texas, and led workshops at prestigious venues like the Corning Museum of Glass and the Pilchuck Glass School.

Crofford’s journey began at UT Arlington, where he cultivated his passion for glass through a unique blend of architecture, theater and art. After spearheading the development of the university’s 3D art program, he opened SiNaCa Studios in 2007, which has since become a hub of creativity and inspiration. His artwork often explores themes of balance and transformation, inviting viewers to connect with their communities through the beauty of glass.
