

JAMILIA GRIER

SPEAKING PROFILE / DUBAI / INTERNATIONAL

The technology story is bigger than the product.

Jamilia Grier is a U.S.-licensed lawyer and technology commentator in Dubai. She explains how market access, regulation and global competition shape the technologies people experience.

Senior roles at a U.S. defense prime and a global bank. Lived and worked in China; now reports from Dubai. Creator of Not Sold in the USA.

THREE CONVERSATIONS

01 Who gets access to tomorrow's technology?

Why a product can reach one market while remaining unavailable or largely unseen in another - and what that reveals about competition, trade and access.

02 What the Gulf sees before the U.S.

A Dubai-based view of Chinese and emerging technology moving into global markets, and what leaders learn by looking across the United States, China and the Gulf.

03 When technology crosses borders but the rules don't.

An accessible conversation about the business and human consequences when technology, data and trade move globally but regulatory systems do not move together.

FORMATS

Keynotes · Panels · Fireside chats · Moderated conversations

Dubai based · Available across the Gulf and Asia · Other locations by arrangement
