The breakfast was really tasty. After the breakfast, we had classroom lessons from 11:40 AM to 12:25 PM. At 12:30 PM, we had lunch at our school. After the lunch, we headed straight to Mainz for a city tour at 3:00 PM. The city tour was really interesting. At the end, we had dinner at Winehouse Wiedermann at 6:30 PM. Tuesday - 18.11.2025

Goethe Haus

The Goethe House in Frankfurt am Main is the birthplace of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe. Goethe spent his childhood and youth in the faithfully reconstructed town house from the 18th century. Today, visitors can visit the historic living quarters and gain a vivid impression of the everyday life of the Goethe family. Together with the neighbouring museum, the house is one of the most important literary memorials in Germany and vividly conveys the life and work of the famous poet.

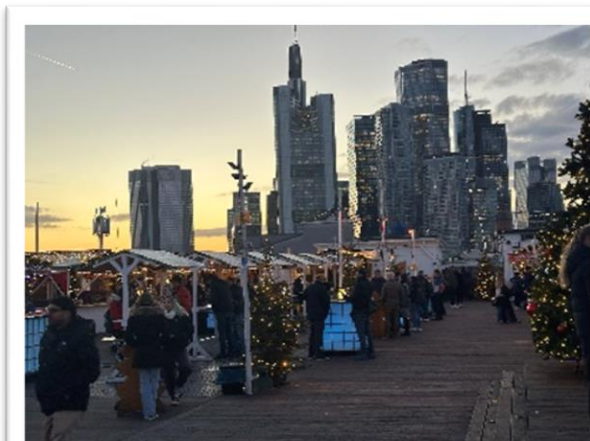

Frankfurt Centre

Our group was out and about in downtown Frankfurt that day. Together we walked through the city centre and also visited the Frankfurt Centre. On the way there, we were able to experience the busy streets, the many shops and the typical city flair. It was a joint walk, during which the entire group stayed together and let the impressions of the city sink in.

Frankfurter Dom

Afterwards, our group also visited the Frankfurt Cathedral. We were there together and took a close look at the impressive building. We were particularly impressed by the high façade and the imposing interior of the cathedral. As we walked through the church, we were able to experience the special atmosphere and historical significance of this place.

We were out and about in downtown Frankfurt, walked around and went shopping. Afterwards we visited the Christmas market, which was especially nice because we had a great view of the skyline and the sun was slowly setting. It was really nice memories that we lived together with the Italians and the Hungarians.

Wednesday - 19.11.2025

The Wednesday was pretty cool, but slightly exhausting. To begin with, we had classroom lessons till 9:30. Then after that, we met each other at the bus station, we took the bus to the Bischofsheimer Bahnhof, after that we took the train to Rüdesheim. That was no problem, but the train ride was pretty long (1h, 30 min.) After we arrived, we almost immediately started hiking towards the statue that was very up high. Sometimes we had breaks and took pictures. After we arrived to the statue, we went back down and visited the German Christmas market in Rüdesheim. We had our free time, and it was pretty cool, we were able to get food/drinks and enjoy a bit of the "Weihnachtsmarkt". After our day was over, and we were all done, we took the train back to Mainz, and took the bus to our home from there.

Thursday - 21.11.25

On November 21 we took the S-Bahn (public transport) to Frankfurt Airport (Fraport) at 8 AM, together with the Erasmus group and the Italian and Hungarian students. Our first stop was the airport's headquarters (HQ), where three employees from the sustainability department welcomed us. They gave a presentation on general facts and the planning for a sustainable airport. The plans for a sustainable airport include the introduction of electric vehicles and the use of green energy. Afterward, we had the opportunity to design our own airport, which we presented at the end. Towards the end of our trip at Frankfurt Airport, we had a private bus tour where various areas of the airport were shown and explained to us.

After visiting Frankfurt Airport, we took the train to Mainz and then the tram to the MEWA Arena. There, we had a private tour where we were able to see the locker rooms, the VIP lounge, the press room, and the football field. Recently, Mainz 05 Stadium decided to become more sustainable. They chose to offer more vegan sausage instead of "regular" sausage. This shows that the stadium is also becoming more aware of sustainability.

Friday - 21.11.25

On Friday, we first had lessons with the students from Italy and Hungary in the 1st and 2nd periods. After the 2nd period, the Italians and Hungarians went to Mainz. However, we still had to stay until after the 4th period, and those who wanted to could go to Mainz after the 4th period. When we arrived in Mainz, we met up with the Italians and Hungarians again and then went to the Gutenberg Museum together. There, we first watched a short film, then walked through the museum and looked at the exhibits. Afterwards, we had to wait until a staff member arrived, and then we attended a presentation about printing and he also demonstrated how printing used to work.

Next, we looked at more exhibits and took group photos. After we were done, the Hungarians left, and only the Germans who wanted to stay were allowed to remain with the Italians. Two of us Germans stayed with the Italians, and then we looked at other exhibits before heading over to Müller.
