BEGIN LENT WITH INTENTION THIS FEBRUARY.

“Even now,” declares the Lord, “return to me with all your heart, with fasting and weeping and mourning.” Rend your heart and not your garments. Return to the Lord your God, for he is gracious and compassionate, slow to anger and abounding in love, and he relents from sending calamity. ~Joel 2:12-13

Dear SRVUMC Family,

Somehow, February has arrived again—and I don’t know about you, but for me it feels like it crept up on us while we weren’t looking. One minute we’re still easing into the New Year, and the next thing we know the calendar is full, the pace has picked up, and February is already demanding our attention in ways that we don’t really feel prepared for.

This is the month of Super Bowl Sunday, Valentine’s, and—almost hiding in plain sight—the beginning of Lent on Ash Wednesday on February 18. Chips and commercials. Chocolate and romance. And then, suddenly, ashes and repentance. Lent doesn’t arrive with fireworks or fanfare or with a lot of warning. It slips in quietly, interrupting our routines, tapping us on the shoulder, and saying, “Okay, now is the time.”

As such, Lent rarely feels convenient or well-timed. It certainly doesn’t wait until life slows down or things feel more manageable. It shows up when we’re busy, distracted, and already juggling too much. Lent sneaks up on us—and maybe that’s exactly why we need this season for the well-being of our spiritual lives.

We will begin this season with our Ash Wednesday service, a solemn and sacred gathering where we pause, tell the truth about our lives, and receive the imposition of ashes. These ashes—marked on our foreheads in the shape of the cross—connect us with centuries of Christian practice rooted in Scripture. In the Bible, ashes symbolize humility, repentance, grief, and our deep dependence on God. They remind us of a truth we often try very hard to avoid: we are not invincible, we are not eternal, and we are not in control.

Which, in a strange and grace-filled way, is exactly the good news.

(continued from previous page) Ash Wednesday speaks honestly in a culture that prefers to stay busy, polished, and put together. It gently but firmly reminds us: you are human. You are finite. You are dust—and you are deeply loved. And yes, there is always a bit of holy humor mixed in. You will leave church marked with ashes and immediately face the annual Ash Wednesday questions: Is this smudge still there? Is it crooked? Does it look intentional—or like I leaned against a fireplace? And of course, the classic dilemma: Do I keep the ashes on all day as a witness to my faith... or did I already accidentally just wipe them off five minutes earlier while reaching for my phone?

Either way, the ashes are not about appearances. They are about belonging—to God, to grace, and to the hope that even from dust, God brings new life. That is why the Church has always understood Lent not as some sort of vague spiritual mood, but as a deliberate season—a time set apart with purpose. Lent interrupts us on purpose. It creates space on purpose. It invites us to stop drifting and start paying attention again—to our lives, our habits, our hearts, and our relationship with God.

And because this season can so easily slip by without intention, we are approaching Lent this year with a clear and intentional plan—one that invites us to walk together rather than each trying to figure it out on our own.

This Lent, our congregation will journey together through a church-wide Lenten study based on the book Freeing Jesus by Diana Butler Bass. This thoughtful and engaging book invites us to rediscover Jesus beyond the narrow or overly familiar images we may have picked up over time. Bass explores different ways Jesus has been understood—friend, teacher, savior, Lord, way, presence—and encourages us to encounter Christ not as a distant religious figure, but as living, present, and active in our lives today. Freeing Jesus is not about leaving Jesus behind; it is about removing the assumptions and limitations that can quietly shrink our faith. Our Sunday morning sermon series during Lent will coincide with this reading, allowing worship, Scripture, and small-group conversation to reinforce one another. This shared rhythm gives us a way to practice Lent together—intentionally, thoughtfully, and with depth.

I encourage you to pick up a copy of the book from your favorite bookseller soon, so you'll be ready to join one of the many groups that will be following along for this season. If you need help connecting with a group, please don't hesitate to let me know—I would be glad to help. And if you're looking for a place to begin, you are always welcome to join me on Tuesday (continued on next page)

Since Lent has a way of sneaking up on us, how about I pose a question before you that is simple but meaningful and will help you get a good start:

What kind of Lenten discipline are you planning to take on this year?

What might you give up? What might you take on? Maybe it's chocolate (a classic). Maybe it's social media (a bold move in February). Or maybe it's not about giving something up at all, but about adding something life-giving—more prayer, more Scripture, more intentional time with God, or more compassion toward others and yourself. Whatever you choose, remember this: Lent is not about spiritual self-punishment or religious productivity. It is about creating space—space to listen, to repent, to be renewed, and to walk more closely with Jesus.

My prayer is that this Lent would not simply pass us by unnoticed, but that it would shape us—drawing us closer to Jesus and deeper in relationship with him. May this holy season interrupt us in all the right ways, slow us down just enough to notice God's presence, and lead us again toward the life God desires for us.

Looking Forward To Journeying With You,

P. Sam | syun@srvumc.org

COMMUNICATIONS GUIDELINES.

At SRVUMC, our Communications Department and Staff are dedicated to supporting the life and mission of our church. We want every ministry, program, and special event to receive the visibility it deserves so that people are informed, engaged, and inspired to participate. To achieve this, we depend on the partnership of ministry leaders to follow these guidelines. Doing so ensures consistency, excellence, and strong brand recognition across all church communications.

1. Promotion of Church Events

Our primary communication platforms (Friday Memo, monthly newsletter, social media, website, and campus signage) are designed to promote SRVUMC events and programs. Outside organizations, including nonprofits, will not be promoted unless explicitly approved by the Pastor and the Director of Communications.

2. Event Scheduling

To avoid conflicts and double-bookings, all events must first be approved by the Facilities Manager before they can be added to the church calendar. Only SRVUMC-specific events that are officially scheduled will be promoted by the Communications Department. Because campus scheduling is complex, please ensure you begin this process early.

3. Information Required for Promotion

For accurate and effective promotion, please email the following details to media@srvumc.org:

- Event title
- Day, time, and location
- Contact person (name & email/phone)
- Cost (if applicable)

Incomplete submissions will be referred back to the event contact for clarification.

4. Editorial Oversight

Event contacts are expected to draft blurbs or articles for their respective events. However, the Communications Staff has final editorial authority over all church communications. This includes text, titles, logos, images, photos, and multimedia. Edits may be made to ensure clarity, consistency, and alignment with church branding. (continued on next page)

5. Authorized Design & Promotion

The Communications Staff is authorized to determine what, when, where, and through which platforms events are promoted. To maintain consistent branding, members and ministry leaders should not produce their own logos, flyers, postcards, or social media posts for official church communication. Digital and physical promotional materials will be created by the Communications Department as appropriate.

6. Image Use & Copyright

All images used in church communications must either be:

- Original photos taken at church events and submitted to media@srvumc.org, or
- Public domain/copyright-free images.

This ensures SRVUMC remains in compliance with copyright laws.

7. Balanced Promotion

Event promotion will be scheduled in the broader context of all upcoming church activities.

The Communications Department will work to balance visibility among multiple events happening within the same time frame.

8. Flyers & Campus Placement

The Communications Staff is authorized to decide whether a flyer will be created for an event, and where (if at all) it will be placed on the church campus.

9. Communication Contact Person

When a group (such as a small group, class, or committee) wishes to promote an event, one designated person should serve as the contact with the Communications Department. This helps streamline communication and ensures accuracy.

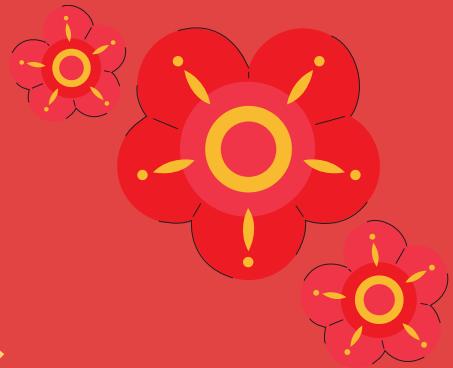

10. Submission Deadlines

- Friday Memo: Submissions due each Wednesday by 4:00 PM.
- Monthly Newsletter: Submissions due on the 15th of each month.

Late submissions may not be included unless approved by the Senior Pastor.

By following these guidelines, we work together to ensure that SRVUMC events and ministries are communicated with clarity, professionalism, and consistency—so that the life of our church continues to shine brightly in our community.

For any questions or concerns, please reach out to the Director of Communications or to the Senior Pastor.

STAFF SPOTLIGHT: JEREMIAH CHAPMAN.

By Sarah Stribling

SRVUMC's newest staff member is Jeremiah Chapman, Director of A/V Services. He has an extensive background working in sound production and impactful nonprofits.

Growing up in Worcester, Massachusetts, Jeremiah has always been tech savvy. He's been using computers since he was eight. His love of sound production began while attending Johnson C. Smith University. Jeremiah became a sports broadcaster for the university. Within three months, Jeremiah became executive producer. This opportunity eventually led to him opening a chapter of the National Association of Black Journalists.

Jeremiah moved to California in 2017 for his role of National Training Director working with a nonprofit organization focused on encouraging youth to get involved with social justice issues. He also has experience in grant writing.

Jeremiah's creative spirit led him to found Afro Vibes and Wine Festival. Inspired by his trip to Jamaica in 2023, this annual festival combines several of Jeremiah's passions: Music, entrepreneurship, community space, food, and film. In 2024, Afro Vibes and Wine drew 600 people and featured several musical artists.

In his free time, Jeremiah can be found delving into music and film production. He has produced a brief documentary on Afro Vibes and Wine. "Music has a spiritual resonance. It can deliver a positive message that worshippers can appreciate," Jeremiah declares.

Jeremiah and his wife Nanyelis. Welcome the Chapman's to SRVUMC!

CARILLON HANDBELL CHOIR SHINES IN THE NEW YEAR.

By Winnie Stribling

Saturday morning, January 17th, found Wesley Center ringing out as our Carillon Choir, accompanied by ringers from St. Timothy Episcopal Church and Community Presbyterian Church, gathered to attend a Handbell Techniques Workshop. Fourteen ringers spent hours honing their skills from how to hold the bell, ring from loud to soft and vice versa, improve bell tone using movements unique to handbell ringing, work on sight reading skills, and other tips to improve our ringing. Martellatos, anyone? How about those damps!

We welcomed David and Lois Kail, former ringers with Sonos Handbell Ensemble, a premier playing group in the Bay Area, to guide us with their talents and expertise. After a light lunch, those that could stay put on gloves, the plastic kind, and rubbed their hands with special polish onto all five octaves, making them shine like new. Thanks to all who participated. We had a great time playing and hanging out together. and are looking forward to doing this again.

BETWEEN THE BOOKENDS.

HAPPY ❤️ DAY!

February is a month in which we show our loved ones how much we love and care for them. It is also a month for us to remember our church's motto, "Kindness Matters." The following books exemplify kindness as has been previously mentioned in Between the Bookends.

Paperboy - a boy who stutters is given understanding and guidance for this.

Mother Daughter Murder Night - a grandmother is determined to assist her granddaughter who is being accused of a crime.

Thursday Murder Club - the retired Scotland Yard agent, Elizabeth, cares for her beloved Stephan, who is suffering from dementia. Even Bogdan, the groundskeeper, plays chess with him to keep his brain active.

Still Alice - a very active Harvard professor is experiencing forgetfulness often but does not understand why. Her family is aware of her changing behavior and are told it is Alzheimer's. They simply continue to love and care for her. After all, she is still Alice.

The Ride of Her Life - A middle aged woman wants to leave her useless farm in Maine and head to California with her dog, her horse and a bundle of belongings. The friendly, helpful, caring people she encounters along her bumpy way is astounding.

THANK YOU, SRVUMC!

Church member and Angel Tree Committee member Beth McClelland shared this inspiring note she received from STAND! for SRVUMC's help making Christmas a bit brighter for survivors of intimate partner violence in Contra Costa County.

Hello, Beth, and Happy New Year!

Thank you to your Angel Tree group and to those in your congregation, who so thoughtfully created the lovely gift baskets and provided gift cards – all to benefit our clients who are working to be free from intimate partner violence. Every year, your group has been instrumental in creating a loving, joyous holiday for those living in the STAND! shelter and transitional housing units. Your actions have truly helped them to feel “at home”, loved, and valued.

There are never enough ways to thank the congregation for all that you do to make this community a better place.

I hold hope that this new year will be on filled with more joy and kindness in our world...your congregation certainly has brought that here to STAND! Thank you!
