Each year, the Kips Bay Decorator Show House Palm Beach puts on a dazzling show. Creatives from all around the world show off their design chops in their dedicated spaces—and when the best in the biz come together under one roof, you know there will be inspiration to be found around every corner. You won't see any boring greige rooms inside this modern villa in West Palm Beach's "SoSo" neighborhood. Instead, you'll discover a sensory world full of bold colors, detailed wallcoverings, unexpected textures and patterns galore. Needless to say, as soon as we saw this glamorous show house, we started taking notes.

From a bathroom with major "under-the-sea" vibes to the return of four-poster beds, here are the biggest trends we spotted at the Kips Bay

We called out “under the sea” as one of our biggest spring design trends for 2024, and it seems like the designers behind the Kips Bay Show House agree. From a beautiful shell-studded bed in Rinfret Limited’s space to a bathroom by Helen Bergin Interiors featuring an Aqualille jellyfish wallcovering, ocean-inspired motifs were everywhere. In Bergin’s bathroom, a custom sculptural sink (using Cosentino’s Dekton stone and minimalist silver Kohler fixtures) rounded out the deep sea vibe.

Even if you don’t want to go full Little Mermaid with a bold aquatic wallpaper, you can still adopt this trend in your own way by adding an orchid to a giant conch shell planter, picking up a seashell-covered mirror, or displaying your prized collection of coral specimens. The world is your oyster (pun fully intended).
