SERVERLESS APPLICATION DEVELOPMENT

Designed to address:

- Traditional application development moving too slowly
- Poor scalability
- Expensive server-based applications
- In-house development teams needing upskilling in serverless technologies

Serverless Application Development by D55 offers unparalleled engineering excellence to build brand-new, cloud-native applications that help you better serve your end customers. Leveraging AWS accredited expertise across essential components such as AWS Lambda and DynamoDB, this service ensures your applications are designed and built right from the start. D55 not only delivers cutting-edge solutions but also partners with your team to upskill and learn along the way, providing clear project leadership and regular progress demonstrations.

End-to-End Application Development

We offer a comprehensive approach to serverless application development, covering everything from initial design and architecture to development, testing, and deployment. Our goal is to deliver a robust, scalable, and maintainable application that meets your business needs.

AWS Accredited Expertise

D55 brings AWS accredited experts to your project, proficient in all necessary components including AWS Lambda, DynamoDB, API Gateway, and more. This expertise ensures that your application is built using best practices, optimised for performance, scalability, and cost-effectiveness.

Customer-Centric Design

The applications we build are designed to enhance your ability to serve your end customers. We focus on understanding your customer needs and integrating those insights into the application design to improve user experience and satisfaction.

Clear Project Leadership

Our project leadership is clear and concise, providing you with regular updates and demonstrations. You will always know what's happening, see progress against the budget, and review features as they are developed. This transparency ensures alignment with your goals and expectations.

Team Upskilling and Knowledge Transfer

D55 works collaboratively with your team throughout the development process, providing opportunities for upskilling and knowledge transfer. This ensures your team is capable of maintaining and evolving the application post-delivery, fostering long-term success.

Book your free consultation now

📞 0161 399 0257

✉ solutions@d55.co.uk

🌐 D55.co.uk