At this point in my career, I have strong desires to do as much as I can to prevent some of the medical conditions that I have been treating. Goals:

Through the years, there has been a drastic increase in the number of diabetic patients that have unfortunately succumbed to amputation. This is not just anecdotal, but this has been statistically proven. My ultimate goal is to utilize my most recently written book concerning the diabetic foot and with a hope that it would provide the necessary conduit that would hopefully limit possibly even prevent loss and amputation that has been found to be exponentially occurring in our diabetic populations.
