

ARTS AND CULTURE GREENVILLE ITINERARY

MORNING

It's always a fun and memorable experience at Backstage Coffee & Vintage for coffee creations. Moosie's Catering Co. is also in the same building, which serves delicious Argentinian-inspired bites.

From there, walk down the street to the Sycamore Hill Gateway Plaza, which is the first stop on the African American Cultural Trail of Greenville-Pitt County. There's also public art aplenty, with more than 175 murals, sculptures, and installations across Pitt County.

AFTERNOON

For lunch, visit Café Duo or A'Tavola. Both have beautiful, rotating artwork on their walls created by eastern North Carolina artists.

Drop by the Pitt County Arts Council and Emerge Gallery and Arts Center to browse local artwork for sale and consider signing up for a painting, drawing, ceramics, metals, or textiles class. Be sure to check out other Pitt County museums, galleries, and studios, including the Greenville Museum of Art, Farmville Community Arts Council, ECU GlasStation in Farmville, and the Town of Ayden Museum.

EVENING

When you're ready for dinner, head over to Nino's Cucina Italiana. The owners, from Italy themselves, bring authentic, award-winning culinary experiences to Greenville-Pitt County. If you arrive early, grab a drink at the bar, sit outside on the patio, or visit the neighboring City Art Gallery to browse beautiful artwork and sculptures.

After dinner, enjoy a live performance at Greenville's State Theatre, the R.A. Fountain General Store in Fountain, or at East Carolina University. The arts flourish in Greenville-Pitt County, from comedy shows and speaker series to music recitals and stage performances.
