

SPORTS ENTHUSIAST GREENVILLE ITINERARY

AFTERNOON

For lunch, Sup Dogs in downtown Greenville is a must-visit spot. While it's continuously ranked the Best College Bar in America, it's also a great atmosphere for sports fans.

During the afternoon, catch an ECU game at Dowdy-Ficklen Stadium, Williams Arena at Minges Coliseum, or Clark-LeClair Stadium. While nearby, visit the ECU Walter & Marie Williams Athletic Hall of Fame Gallery located in the Smith-Williams Center. Don't forget to swing by Stallings Stadium at Elm Street Park in Greenville to see where the Little League Softball World Series is held annually in August. You can also see the Greenville Yard Gnomes, a Coastal Plain League summer league baseball team, in action at Guy Smith Stadium.

MORNING

Welcome to Pirate Nation! Greenville is home to East Carolina University, along with nationally ranked high school sports programs. If you love sports, you're in the right place - we do too!

Grab breakfast at Bagelman, which is decorated with ECU sports memorabilia and photos. It's also a favorite spot for local athletes – both high school and college – as well as their coaches and fans. After breakfast, enjoy a morning outdoors with a game of disc golf at the Farmville Municipal Course or book a tee time at the Bradford Creek Public Golf Course and Driving Range or at one of Pitt County's five private country clubs. If racquet sports are your thing, there are dozens of tennis and pickleball courts open to the public.

The outfield berm at ECU's baseball stadium is called "The Jungle" and can accommodate up to 2,000 enthusiastic fans!

EVENING

You don't have to stay home to watch a game, either. With three locations in Pitt County, Tie Breakers is a fun, locally owned restaurant that is a destination for sports fans. It's also the location of live broadcasts for sports radio stations and features an Athlete of the Month from area high schools.
