

FARM-TO-TABLE GREENVILLE ITINERARY

MORNING

Pitt County's agricultural roots run deep. With hundreds of farms throughout eastern North Carolina, there are endless pick-your-own adventures and farm-to-table restaurants. Yoder's Dutch Pantry is a must-visit breakfast spot in Grifton. It is open Monday through Saturday and serves delicious menu options, including its famous French toast with butter syrup.

Take a farm tour and pick your own seasonal fruits at various farms throughout Pitt County. Some local favorites include Briley's Farm Market, Strawberries on 903 and Davenport Farm Market. Be sure to stop by the Leroy James Farmers Market, open on Saturday mornings, to visit a wide variety of vendors with products from local honey and fresh cut flowers to locally sourced meats and farm-fresh produce.

AFTERNOON

Grab lunch at The Scullery in downtown Greenville or Native Fine Diner on Dickinson Avenue for more farm-to-table options, as both restaurants source fresh and seasonal ingredients from farms and vendors throughout eastern North Carolina.

Enjoy a sweet ice cream treat at Simply Natural Creamery's Greenville location – or visit its Jersey Farm in Ayden for a fun and memorable experience. Simply Natural, ranked third best ice cream nationwide by USA Today, is a local, family-owned farm that provides high-quality dairy products from Jersey cows! For more local products and snacks, visit the Farmers and Makers Market and Jefferson's Florist and Gifts. Be sure to check out the Wine Shop at Jefferson's or stop by Aji to enjoy a wine tasting or glass of wine while shopping around.

EVENING

When it comes to dinner, there are dozens of farm-to-table options depending on your culinary preferences. Just to name a few with seasonal menus focused on offerings of local farms and vendors, reserve a table at downtown Greenville's Ford + Shep, Starlight Café and Farm, or The Homage Restaurant as well as Main & Mill Oyster Bar in Winterville.
