BIO

Gregory Man is the President and General Counsel of General Holdings Limited, a diversified holding and investment company headquartered in Dubai's International Financial Centre (DIFC). In this dual role, he oversees the group's legal affairs, investment strategy, governance, and global partnerships, supporting growth across sectors including real estate, infrastructure, entertainment, industrials, and technology.

Prior to joining General Holdings, Gregory spent over 23 years in international legal practice with Clifford Chance, Norton Rose Fulbright, and Bird & Bird, where he led regional and global Islamic Finance and Debt Capital Markets practices. He is recognized for advising on landmark, award-winning financings and sovereign transactions throughout Europe, the Middle East, and Asia. His expertise spans Islamic and conventional capital markets, structured finance, debt restructurings, and emerging areas of financial innovation such as tokenisation, crypto assets, NFTs, DeFi, and digital finance ecosystems.

Gregory has advised governments, global financial institutions, corporates, VC funds, and football clubs, earning recognition from Chambers Global, IFLR1000, and Legal 500, and was named one of the Top 10 Most Influential Debt Capital Markets Lawyers in the Middle East. As a principal shareholder and co-founder at General Holdings, he combines his transactional and regulatory experience to help drive the firm's global expansion and strategic partnerships.
