

A Self-Assessment Scorecard and Supporting Guidance for Local Authorities

The scorecard allows local authorities to easily assess their modern slavery risk across a number of key thematic areas and provide advice on how they can improve. An accompanying guide has also been created, providing tiered signposting to further resources, templates and frameworks allowing users to embed best practice across their work.

This resource has been created in collaboration by Shiva Foundation, STOP THE TRAFFIK and the Mekong Club, with funding from the Home Office. The project was created in light of the Government's ambitious package of measures to strengthen the Modern Slavery Act's transparency legislation including, amongst other things, extending the reporting requirement to public bodies with a budget of £36 million or more.
