SHAH ALAM: Rosen Malaysia has crossed a safety milestone, recording more than one million man-hours without any recordable incident.

Rosen Group Asia-Pacific business collaboration and resourcing management vice president Floris Verhagen said, for the group, 1 million safe hours is not just a number, it is a commitment.

"It reflects months of continuous operations across high-risk projects, without a single incident. Every pipeline inspected, every site visited, and every decision made was driven by our commitment to safety.

"The milestone was built on trust, discipline and a culture of care within the company," he said at Rosen Group's HSE Day celebration, recently.

Beyond safety, he remarked that Rosen is on a broader commitment to environmental, social, and governance (ESG) principles.

"We are looking to build on these results by expanding its use of sustainable technologies, cutting carbon emissions further, and strengthening ties with local communities."

The achievement was celebrated during its Health, Safety, and Environment Day 2025 (HSE Day 2025) at its Asia Pacific Headquarters in Glenmarie, Shah Alam.

HSE Day 2025 was held in conjunction with the World Day for Safety and Health at Work, and also highlighted the company's focus on innovation and risk reduction.

Attendees were given a close look at Rosen's latest inspection technologies, including hands-free tools and real-time safety systems aimed at reducing human exposure to hazardous environments.

Industry stakeholders also participated in a live dialogue session, discussing safety leadership and the future of asset integrity in the region.

The company set up recycling stations around the venue for fabric and electronic waste, and collaborated with the National Blood Centre for an on-site blood donation drive.

Asia Pacific marketing and communication head Noor Alia Mohd Arif said the group wanted to ensure every part of the event created a positive impact.

"By collecting data, from shirts recycled to blood pints donated, we made sure our ESG efforts were not just symbolic but measurable.

"Rosen Group, a global provider of asset integrity solutions, is committed to focus on protecting people, assets and the environment through technology-driven services," she said.

Since 2022, Rosen Group's Malaysian operations have seen a 28% reduction in electricity consumption and a 29% cut in travel-related emissions.
