We work with families or travel insurance companies to repatriate Australians back home for their funeral service.

After years of experience and attending overseas conferences, we have developed an extensive network of overseas contacts that we can call upon in your time of need.

Once appointed, you will have a dedicated staff member to provide daily updates and answer questions when needed.

There's no need to jump on the next plane and head overseas, we can facilitate the repatriation for you and your family.

We strive to remove any stress involved in the repatriation process and to bring your loved one back home safely as soon as possible.

If you have an insurance policy, we will provide paperwork and information required to have the coverage approved.

If there is no insurance policy:

Family will need to settle the account directly themselves.

We advise families it is imperative to be careful when appointing a local funeral home in the country where your loved one has died, they may not have the relevant experience to support a repatriation service and delay the process.

Contact Ambrose Australia International Repatriations immediately - we can then help support you right from the start.

We will organise the airport clearances in Australia or overseas and organise the transfer to your preferred funeral home in your home country.

We will keep the funeral home who will be caring for your loved one updated throughout the whole process.

In most countries we will obtain the police report, medical report (which may not include a cause of death).

Please note some countries will not issue a cause of death without an autopsy.

Most travel insurance policies will require a cause of death to pay out coverage on a travel insurance claim.

A member of the team will be on hand to provide the advice and support you need to bring your loved one back home.
