

Dating app Chyrpe strengthens chat safety and respect

London, UK - October 9th 2025

Chyrpe, the dating app designed for female-led relationships and femdom, has announced new measures to reinforce safety, respect, and intentional communication between its users. With a global community built on female-led values, Chyrpe continues to prioritize features that ensure every interaction begins with trust and consent.

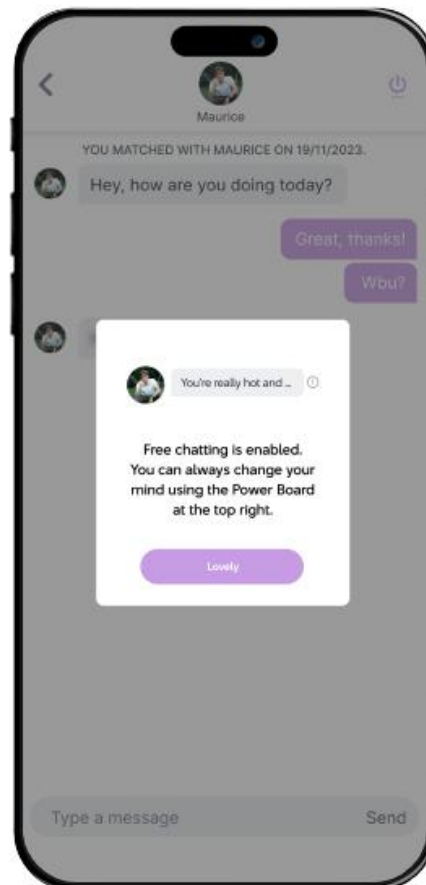

Safety in every conversation

Chyrpe remains one of the few dating apps where 100% of users are verified, blocking fake accounts and fraudulent activity from the start. Building on this foundation, the platform has strengthened safeguards for messaging to give more freedom to the users, allowing them to choose what messages they want to receive and updating their preferences easily. Before sending a sexually explicit message, users are prompted to confirm their choice, ensuring that communication stays deliberate and respectful.

Respect through user control

The recipient always decides how to proceed: they can allow explicit content, block it, or continue with a standard chat. These preferences can be updated anytime through the women-led Power Board, which places control firmly in the hands of users and has been one of Chyrpe's most popular features since the beginning. The system reflects Chyrpe's commitment to female-led relationship principles, where respect, safety, and consent shape the entire experience.
