CRATE COLLECTION DESIGN BY GERRIT RIETVELD, RELAUNCHED BY RIETVELD ORIGINALS X HAY

Initially designed to make use of surplus wooden shipping crates by Dutch architect and designer Gerrit Rietveld in 1934, the iconic Crate Collection has been relaunched in a Rietveld Originals x HAY collaboration.

Comprising a variety of outdoor tables and seating solutions, all the items in the collection share the same precisely balanced proportions and transparent construction to minimise production costs and optimise the assembly process. Made of solid pine, with a water-based lacquered finish suitable for outdoor use, the collection's simplicity and spatial design mirrors the designer's architectural principles – providing functionality and comfort without absorbing space. The Crate Collection is suitable for a wealth of indoor and outdoor settings, and can be supplemented with optional seat cushions in selected textiles for extra comfort.

Gerrit Thomas Rietveld (1888 -1964) was one of the greatest Dutch architects and furniture designers of all times. Son of a carpenter, Rietveld was trained by his father as a cabinetmaker before setting up his own shop in 1917. By 1919, he had embarked upon a career in architecture and joined the 'De Stijl' Movement, which helped define his progressive style. Rietveld's avant-garde approach was focused on adapting and adjusting architecture to the ways people lived their lives, constantly seeking harmony between architecture and interior. Rietveld's mission to create well-designed and affordable furniture for the masses echoes HAY's values, resulting in a Rietveld Originals x HAY collaboration with the relaunch of his iconic Crate series from 1934.

CRATE CUSHION COLLECTION

Adding extra comfort and functionality to the Crate Collection, the Crate Cushion is specially formed to fit each Crate model perfectly. Available in different variants depending on the model – a loose seat cushion and a folded variant with anti-slip backing to keep them securely in place, and a quilted model with Velcro® fastening underneath the seat and two straps that fasten around the top of the chair frame. All variants are crafted in fabric with a water-repellent finish and high UV resistance that makes them fade-resistant with good colour fastness properties. The cushions are available in several colour options and can be used all year round.
