

The background of the image is a close-up, high-contrast photograph of a laser cutting process. A bright, intense light emanates from the point where the laser head meets the metal workpiece, creating a dense spray of glowing orange and yellow sparks that radiate outwards. The laser head itself is a complex, metallic assembly with various components visible, including a small label that reads "EISEN 2.0 MADE IN GERMANY". The overall scene is dark, emphasizing the bright light and sparks of the cutting process. In the top right corner, there are two overlapping squares, one light gray and one dark gray.
