Why OutsideIn

In 2014, Ryan McQuerry and Nick Lubeck started Outside In from a garage in West Auckland with a simple belief: bringing nature into the built environment makes spaces better for people.

As they built the business, they noticed that greenery was too often treated as an afterthought rather than a design decision. So they built Outside In differently, bringing design, installation and ongoing care together under one roof and making greenery an integral part of the space from the start.

Today, Outside In works across New Zealand, with teams in Sydney and Melbourne and the capability to deliver special projects internationally. Our work spans everything from single-tenancy fit-outs to landmark commercial developments, for organisations including KPMG, Westpac, Westfield and Qantas.

We're still owned and led by Ryan and Nick, and that original belief continues to shape the way we work.

We don't ask you to take our word for it. Our portfolio spans single-tenancy fit-outs through to landmark, multi-building developments, including Westpac and Westfield Newmarket, alongside corporate clients like KPMG, 2degrees, Datacom, UDC Finance, Air New Zealand, Qantas and One NZ, and hospitality names including Park Hyatt, QT Hotel and Sudima.

Case Study

Healing Garden. Bringing the restorative power of nature into the heart of healthcare.

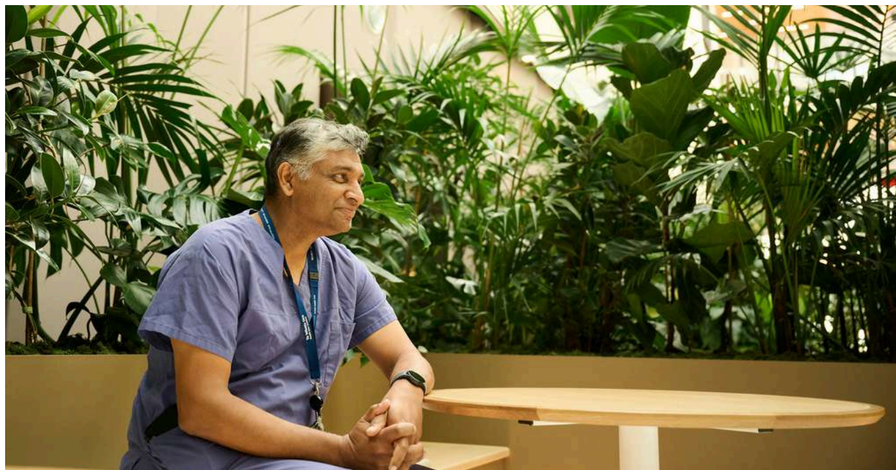

Located within the indoor atrium of Tōtara Haumaru at North Shore Hospital, the Healing Garden is a pioneering biophilic environment designed to support patients, visitors and healthcare staff. Developed in collaboration with Jasmax, Haumi and the Well Foundation, the 110m. garden recreates the layered canopy of a New Zealand forest using more than 500 plants across 15 species, creating a calming sanctuary within a highly technical hospital environment.

Meeting the rigorous requirements of a live healthcare setting, the project balanced complex engineering constraints including waterproofing, fire compliance and structural loading, all while delivering an immersive, fully accessible landscape. Most patient recovery rooms overlook the garden, bringing the proven benefits of nature into the everyday hospital experience.

Recognised internationally with the Diamond Award at the International Biophilic Design Awards and Platinum at the International Plantscape Awards, the Healing Garden demonstrates how exceptional biophilic design can transform some of the world's most demanding environments.
