Love grows with us

Filly and Dilly went for a walk. While crossing the park to get to the amusement park, they noticed red hearts everywhere around them.

There was a dad with a toddler, who had a heart balloon attached to his stroller.

A grandmother and grandfather sailing in a swan boat, showing affection to each other.

A young man proposing to his future wife.

Or two sisters lying on the grass sunbathing cheerfully.

Another gentleman was stroking his beloved dog.

The situations were plenty and diverse.

Filly and Dilly paused for a moment.

Then suddenly Filly asked:
"Do you know what they all have in common, Dilly?"

Dilly put his paw over his heart, felt the pulsing warmth, and answered with confidence in his voice: "Love."

"You're right. Love can be expressed in many different ways and to many different people, animals, or things. Love grows with us. The older we get, the more types of love we discover. And what or whom do you love, Dilly?"

"You and candy cubes!" Dilly replied quickly.

They both laughed and continued their journey to the amusement park to celebrate Valentine's Day.
