Time for snoring?

It was the time of the afternoon snooze. The room was filled with the sounds of snoring, which made everything seem even more boring.

Filly picked up one of her cat toys and threw it like a fishing rod in the direction that the snoring was coming from.

"Foamy aliens are attacking us! Take off Captain Bubble!" Shouted Dilly, awakened from a deep sleep.

"I see you had an interesting dream Dilly," smiled Filly.

"You know what, I have a great idea. I know that sometimes it's good to get bored and relax, but when we get way too bored, we can use our imagination to do whatever we want and become whoever we want."

"Well... my sleepy boredom was quite pleasant," replied Dilly, still slightly sleepy, and then added: "Can we fly into space too?"

"Of course! We can also do something funny, create a song without instruments, or even become movie stars."

Dilly paused to think about what Filly said and then glanced at his toy box, which contained several cubes, balls, and his puppy toys named Jolly Dog and Mr. Chicken.

Suddenly he livened up, folded his hands into binoculars, got lost in his imagination, and shouted: "Captain Filly! Mr. Chicken's ship is flying towards us. They are carrying delicious round watermelons that taste like jelly beans. They are going to have a picnic on the moon. Shall we join them?"

"Yes, I'll just ask Mr. Hamster to lift us into the air with his plane!" replied Filly, and a while later imagined Mr. Hamster, normally a toy, but today an airplane pilot, arrived to take them up in the air.

They jumped aboard his machine, shouting loudly:

"Hey hurray, boredom go away!" and set off on an exciting journey in the comfort of their home.
