Event Notes

Türkiye's strategic location between the resource-rich Middle East and Caspian region and the energy-consuming Europe, heavily reliant on imports, gives it a significant position. Recent onshore and offshore exploration activities have accelerated Türkiye's progress in the energy sector. However, this rapid development has introduced new occupational health and safety challenges. The expanding operations have led to a noticeable importance in OHS management in the oil and natural gas industry.

PMOHS'25, organized by the Chamber of Engineers, aims to address these OHS risks and develop new strategies for the sector. The event will bring stakeholders together to evaluate current OHS practices, share best practices, and identify necessary steps to enhance safety chain.
