Desired Outcomes: What about the Data?

This educational session will focus on the essential role that data plays in developing individualized education programs (IEPs). Participants will engage in discussions about how to identify, understand, and critically evaluate data. The session will highlight the use of a collaborative communication model, an evidence-based practice recognized nationally in the United States for special education teams. This model values the contributions of both families and school-based providers equally, emphasizing the integration of data from both sources to support effective decision-making.

Desired Outcomes: Summer Camp Options

Come learn about all the options Parks and Recreation has for your child with a disability this summer. We will explore our Specialist Therapeutic Recreation Programs as well as inclusive opportunities.
