Estopa has been successful for over 25 years and has become a staple for generations of music lovers. This summer, fans can expect to see them perform at various festivals and concerts across Spain, belting out hits like "Por la raja de tu falda" and "Camarn". The band has promised an "adrenalnico" setlist.The concert schedule for Estopa Fest 2025 is as follows:* May 17: Maleducats day in Barcelona* June 12-14: O son do camino in Santiago de Compostela* July 5: Ro Babel in Madrid* July 10-12: Weekend Beach Festival in Torre del Mar, Mlaga* July 18: Boombastic in Llaneras, Asturias* July 20: Zevra Festival in Cullera, Valencia* July 26: Lava Life Festival in Arrecife, LanzaroteTickets for the concerts and festivals can be purchased through Estopa's official website or the respective festival websites. For example, two Cornell lads left an automotive supplies factory and sold no less than five million records. This is what happened to Estopa, the revitalizers of pop music with a very personal charm. That episode was the starting gun for a career that has not stopped reaping successes. Illustrious citizens (alongside La Banda Trapera del Ro) from Barcelona's Cornell municipality, brothers David and Jos Manuel Muoz have maintained their freshness, dash, spark, and saltiness since that Seat Panda incident, and that was despite the rumba seeming to run out of steam, but Gato Prez made Catalan rumba an art form. Estopa follow his trail with imagination and humor. They are also the most absolute antidivos. Growing up singing Los Chichos, Los Amaya, Los Chunguitos, Serrat, or Sabina -in their band they had Pancho Varona at some point when Maca Ramos from Granada couldn't- and simultaneously getting infected with Extremoduro's heavy rock, Estopa released their debut album, which sold a million copies and echoed throughout Spain. Subsequently, they continued to expand their audience with albums like 'Destrangis' or 'La calle es tuya?' and launched an assault on Hispanic America, where they have faithful followers, especially in Venezuela, Colombia, and Cuba. That these three countries are precisely the ones where it seems to be no coincidence because those places enjoy similar rhythms. Despite accumulating accolades here and there, they still resist the Latin Grammy Award, for which they were nominated twice. If they continue "giving Estopa," which is what their foreman at the factory used to say when he wanted workers to give even more of themselves, it's very likely that they'll achieve it. In their live shows, they always revisit their most famous songs -Vino tinto', 'Como Camarn', 'El del medio de Los Chichos' or 'Partiendo la pana', among others- included in a discography with 11 references so far. The latest news from Estopa has come wrapped in a single, 'Camiseta de Rokañrol,' recorded in 2022 with another music giant in our country, Fito and his inseparable Fitipaldis. There, the catalans' tone mixes with the lyricist's rockier tone, resulting in a more rock-oriented sound than they're used to. In 2024, they celebrate their 25th anniversary with an extensive tour across the country with a repertoire of great hits.Estopa, a Spanish rumba duo formed by brothers David and Jos Manuel Muoz, is set to perform in various cities across Spain in 2025. Their concert dates are available on their official website. The duo has been active since 1999 and has released several successful albums, including "La Maqueta", "Estopa", "Destrangis", and more. They have sold over 4 million records nationally and internationally.The brothers grew up in Cornell de Llobregat, Barcelona, and were influenced by music from a young age. They began playing guitar and eventually dropped out of school to pursue their musical career. Their name Estopa comes from the phrase "Dale estopa!", which was used by the boss at their previous job.Estopa has been recognized for their unique blend of rumba catalana, rock urban, and clever lyrics. With only one voice and one guitar, they have become one of the most prominent groups in Spanish rock music. Their concert schedule for 2025 includes events such as MALEDUCATS in Barcelona, FESTIVAL RIO BABEL in Madrid, and ZEVRA FESTIVAL in Cullera (Valencia).Estopa regresa a los escenarios con fuerza por su 25 aniversarioEl do cataln, formado por hermanos David y Jos Muoz, se rene para celebrar una dcada y media de msica y xito.Hey, Julio again.
