Annual rock and pop music festival Bilbao BBK Live takes place in Bilbao, Spain. The event is held on a special complex built for the festival on the slopes of Mount Cobetas. The first edition was organized by Last Tour International in 2006 under the name Bilbao Live Festival. Since then, the festival has been sponsored by local savings bank Bilbao Bizkaia Kutxa, who gave it its current name. The festival exceeded 100,000 visitors for the first time in 2011 and left an economical impact estimated at over 17.5 million euros in the city. The event was nominated for "Best Foreign Festival" and "Best Medium-Sized European Festival" awards. After a failed attempt to establish a street circuit in the city, the government decided to fill the summer events calendar with an open-air music festival. In early 2006, the city approached local musical promoter Last Tour International to organize the Bilbao Live Festival. The event received a budget of 4.2 million euros and was held on the newly developed area in mount Cobetas. The music festival, held over three days between July 13-15, 2006, featured two main stages for rock acts, electronic music tents, pop music tent, and various bars and shops. More than 40 national and international bands performed, including Guns N' Roses, Placebo, Pretenders, Andrs Calamaro, and Ariel Roth. The event drew over 51,000 attendees and was considered a success by the LTI representative, Alfonso Santiago. The festival's second edition in 2007 saw an increase in budget and stage area from 70,000 to 110,000 m2. It was also held in June for the first time, with American bands Red Hot Chili Peppers, Metallica, Incubus, and New York Dolls among the headliners. Over 95,000 people attended the event, generating an estimated 13 million euros in economic impact. In 2008, the festival returned to its original July dates and featured acts like R.E.M., Lenny Kravitz, ZZ Top, The Police, and Madness. However, attendance dropped to around 80,000 due to rain and transportation issues. Despite this, the edition was still considered a success, paving the way for future events. The festival, which was initially set to move to a new location at an abandoned amusement park in Mount Artxanda, ultimately decided to stick with the venue Cobetas and promised improvements for 2009. Despite facing financial difficulties due to the economic crisis in Spain, the fourth edition of the festival still attracted over 52,600 visitors, a decrease from previous years but enough to confirm its continuity. This edition saw an increase in foreign attendees, mainly from France and the UK, thanks to a special offer for people with addresses outside Spain. The festival featured a diverse lineup of artists, including Depeche Mode, Jane's Addiction, and Kaiser Chiefs, among others. Festival Phenomenal Handclap Band Cycle Expatriate Ama.
