Meet Your Instructors

DR MICHELLE DARLINGTON

Dr Michelle Darlington is Head of Learning Design and Content Development at Cambridge Judge Business School's Centre for Social Innovation. She specialises in translating cutting-edge research into transformative professional learning experiences. With a PhD in Drawing and Cognition from Loughborough University, her academic background bridges cognitive psychology, creativity, and leadership education.

Michelle has taught across postgraduate and executive programmes, including the MSt in Social Innovation at CJBS. Her current research focuses on the sustainability of community economic development organisations and their roles in cross-sector leadership. As co-founder of the Thinking Through Drawing project, she has led international research on visual literacy, creativity, and reflective practice in leadership.

Previously, she was Junior Research Fellow at the Cambridge School of Art, where she developed a cross-disciplinary postgraduate programme in design thinking.

"Leadership today demands clarity, resilience, and creativity. This programme is designed to unlock all three—in a space where women lead from strength, not conformity."

"This programme is built for reflection, not just instruction. You will leave knowing how to lead as yourself, not by imitation."

Margaret Herde

Margaret Herde is the founder and managing director of Embarr Group, a Dubai-based consultancy specialising in luxury brand strategy, communications and personal branding. With her two decades' experience working across the GCC, UK and Europe, Margaret helps premium, luxury brands, entrepreneurs and C-level executives build distinctive visibility and long-term influence. She also leads Embarr Institute, delivering curated lifestyle and professional courses in executive presence, etiquette and media training. Margaret is an advocate for women in business and a regular guest lecturer at universities in Dubai and Abu Dhabi.

Our courses are led by exceptional academics and industry experts. Class sizes are kept small (Up to 20 participants) to ensure a personalised and exclusive learning experience.
