The DiSTI Corporation Named Awardee on $396 Million U.S. Army Family of Maintenance Trainers IDIQ Contract

Selection reinforces DiSTI's leadership in military training and simulation technologies.

Orlando, FL (July 16, 2026) – The DiSTI Corporation has been named an awardee on the U.S. Army's Family of Maintenance Trainers (FMT) Indefinite Delivery, Indefinite Quantity (IDIQ) contract, which has a ceiling value of $396 million.

The contract supports the continued modernization and sustainment of the Army's Family of Maintenance Trainers product line and encompasses a broad range of capabilities, including analysis, design, development, production, installation, testing, upgrades, technology refresh, modifications, skills sustainment, cybersecurity, and instructional support.

The FMT program delivers advanced training systems that enable Soldiers to develop and maintain critical maintenance skills across a variety of Army platforms while reducing dependence on operational equipment and increasing readiness at schoolhouses and distributed training locations worldwide.

"DiSTI is honored to once again be selected as an awardee on this important contract vehicle supporting the Army's maintenance training mission," said Jason Thagard, President of DiSTI. "Our team is committed to delivering mission-focused training solutions that improve warfighter readiness. We look forward to leveraging our expertise, proven experience supporting military training initiatives, and broad portfolio across major defense platforms to help ensure Soldiers have access to the tools they need to train effectively and maintain operational superiority."

DiSTI has extensive experience supporting military training initiatives. The company's portfolio includes training solutions for platforms such as HIMARS, MLRS, M109A7 Paladin, CH-47 Chinook, Abrams, Stryker, and numerous additional defense programs across the United States and allied nations, underscoring the breadth of its defense training support.
