

Girdwood Chapel Worship Time Survey Results

(November 23 – December 7)

Results: The survey shows that most respondents prefer a morning worship time, with 9:00 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. being the top choices.

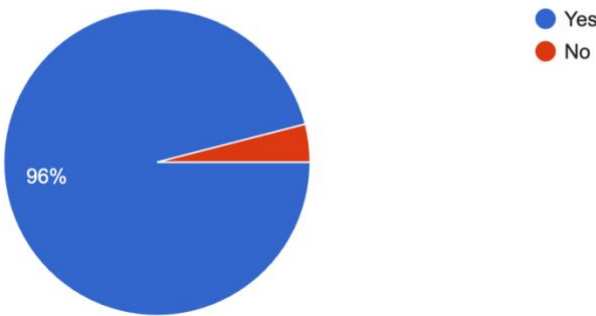

We received 25 submissions in total—15 paper surveys and 10 online surveys—but one person submitted twice, so the final count is 24 unique responses.

In the third diagram, the majority of respondents indicated that they are open to trying a worship time change during the ski season.

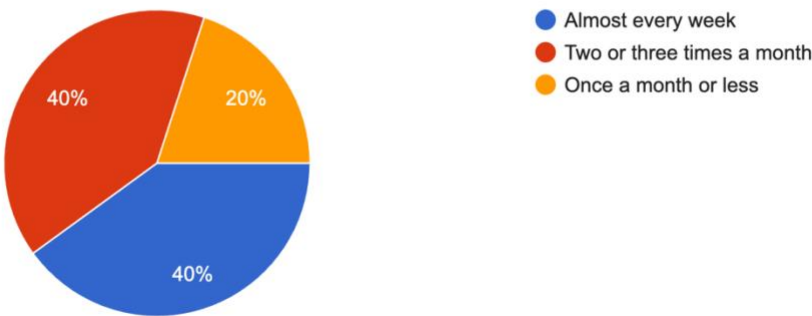

Below are the original results from the worship time survey.

What might help you or others feel more connected to worship and community life? 14 responses

Having a consistent worship time is important, I believe to keep those who come sometimes, once in a while or seasonally. People may stop attending because they don't know when service is.

Variety of activities & outreach; less formal activities; more age inclusive activities

Already feel connected

please mark 9:00 worship preference

Invite: visiting time after - cookies/muffins

please mark 9:00/9:30 worship preference

Just wanted to note b/c I couldn't type it above. I prefer the morning service of 10:30 but am willing to change to an evening service if it helps bring more people into the church

Is there some way we could survey community members (non-Chapel goers) about what would bring them to the chapel/what time(s) would be best for worship services for them.

Showing up and taking the time out of their lives.

Perhaps if everyone sits closer to the front of the Chapel? Also, introduce guests, if this wouldn't be too intrusive?

Greeting/Usher (Usher) training for us

I feel pretty connected already! 😊

Children involved in services (as with Doeppken family); communication with other Christian churches here (Mormon, Catholic); more 'live' music if possible (we miss Landy!)
