The season was filled with backstabbing, scheming, and murder, making it an epic ride for viewers.The season premiered on January 9th, introducing a new group of contestants to the castle. However, not everyone made it out alive, as eliminations, murders, and banishments took place each week.Each episode brought new twists and turns, keeping viewers on the edge of their seats. The Faithfuls tried to root out the Traitors, hoping to secure the $250,000 prize. But with new recruits and surprises, it was hard to keep up.The finale revealed the identity of the winner and who was banished in the final episode. Spoilers ahead! Tom Sandoval was finally evicted in Episode 10 after a plan by Danielle and Britney went into motion. In another surprising move, Carolyn murdered Sam in Episode 9, despite being close to Dylan.The season also saw the murder of Chrishell in Episode 8, with the two remaining Traitors deciding she was too Faithful. Her post-mortem interview revealed her shock at discovering Carolyn's true allegiance.Derrick's elimination in Episode 7 was predicted by Rob, who then went on to eliminate him. Danielle's reaction to this pick was not pleased, but the trio of Traitors continued their game.Catch up on The Traitors Season 3 murders and banishments on Peacock, and find out who won the competition.She thought that by getting rid of Derrick's body, it would be like starting over in the turret. But Rob's choice might lead to his downfall. After hearing about Derrick's passing, he immediately turned to Dylan and claimed he'd been framed, just as Derrick had told him to do before he died.Episode 6 Murder: Bob H (Faithful)PeacockNo one was ready to say goodbye to Bob H in the castle except Rob, who knew that Bob H was having doubts about his loyalty. Carolyn and Danielle agreed they couldn't work together effectively, so they made a joint decision. The next morning, while waiting for breakfast guests, Ciara declared she'd set the place on fire if anyone harmed Bob H. I support her arson plans, as justice is needed for Bob H! Episode 5 Murder: Robyn (Faithful)PeacockRob nominated Robyn for murder, saying she's the one player no one suspects of being a traitor. Carolyn resisted, but eventually agreed to kill Robyn along with Danielle and Gabby, despite Danielle wanting to take down Rob instead.Episode 4 Murder: Jeremy (Faithful)PeacockTraitor Danielle killed Survivor alum Jeremy Collins, but this might have been a strategic error. Yes, the Traitors eliminated a potential threat, but Carolyn was devastated by the choice, making her regret her decision.Episode 3 Murder: Chanel Ayan (Faithful)PeacockIt's hunting season at the castle, and the Real Housewives are in danger. For their second murder, the Traitors chose to go after Chanel Ayan from Real Housewives of Dubai, hoping to create chaos and target Robyn Dixon as well.Episode 2 Murder: Dorinda (Faithful)PeacockDorinda was murdered on night one despite sacrificing herself for her team in an early challenge. She may have survived six seasons of The Real Housewives of New York City but ultimately couldn't escape the Traitors.The Traitors Season 3 BanishmentsEpisode 11 Banishment: Britney (Traitor)PeacockBritney spent her last hours trying to turn everyone against Dylan, who was suspicious after Danielle's banishment. He noticed that before leaving, Danielle said something nice about every player except Britney, making him think she had betrayed her.Episode 10/11 Banishment: Danielle (Traitor)PeacockIn a tie between Ivar and Danielle, no player received a majority of the votes at the roundtable in Episode 10. In case of a tie, players must plead their cases one last timeThe players cast their votes, with Ivar presenting a logical argument while Danielle pleaded for her life to Dylan, despite Gabby's convincing case that she was a Traitor. Dylan and Gabby voted against Danielle again, as Dolores chose Ivar, leaving Britney's vote unspoken before the episode ended. In a surprise twist, Britney revealed her vote in Episode 11, banishing Danielle for thinking it would be unanimous. Danielle declared, "I said I was gonna come in this game and play for my family by any means necessary. And, of course, I'm definitely a traitor." Episode 9 saw Carolyn, the last Traitor remaining, get eliminated after acting suspiciously.In other episodes, Ciara, a Faithful player, was banished due to doubts about her loyalty, while Boston Rob, a Traitor, was voted out without support from his allies. Tom Sandoval's disbelief in Rob's story contributed to his demise. Meanwhile, Wes, a Faithful player, was eliminated for playing aggressively and lacking friendship in the castle. Nikki, another Faithful player, suffered the saddest banishment. The game continues with players like Britney potentially switching sides...Nikki was initially sent home due to her suspicious behavior in episode 3, where she was seen putting herself in a coffin, leading fellow players to question her loyalty. Despite this, Nikki maintained that everyone is born different and should not be judged based on their personalities or actions. In episode 4, Boston Rob turned against one of his own, Bob the Drag Queen, after accusing him of being a Traitor. However, in a surprising twist, Boston Rob later accused himself of being a Traitor and was subsequently voted out.Meanwhile, Tony from episode 3 was banished by his fellow players due to his reluctance to sacrifice for the team and a perceived betrayal of trust. Lastly, Wells became the first player to be voted out of the game in episode 2 after an accusation from Robyn led to Carolyn casting the final vote.Britney Spears' vote for Danielle was a pivotal moment in the latest episode of The Traitors. Fans believe she voted for Danielle to prevent a tie and maintain her position as a loyal ally, given their shared experience on Big Brother Reindeer Games. However, some speculate that Britney's true intention was to sabotage Danielle once again, citing their complicated past. Others, including fans who initially supported Britney, now question her loyalty after being blindsided by Danielle in the previous season. With no clear answer to who will be eliminated, fans are left with more questions than answers about Britney's true motives.When Season 3 promo came out last January, people got excited. The trailer showed Britney and Dolores looking up at a helicopter, which hinted that they both made it to the final week's show. As for the "Helicopter Challenge," viewers were still waiting for it to happen, but now we know it's not going to be in this season. This means that all the suspense was just a clever plot twist.The latest episode ended on a cliffhanger with a tie-break vote between Ivar and Danielle at the round table. The producers had to film this intense scene, and they even admitted that some things went as expected while others were completely surprising. They wanted to keep viewers on their toes!It's also worth noting that the producers don't have complete control over who gets voted off. Sometimes, people might get eliminated when the team doesn't want them to go yet. This adds an extra layer of suspense and unpredictability to the show.The Traitors season three finale was a thrilling 70-minute episode where Jake and Leanne emerged as the winners. They took home 94,600 between them (47,300 each). The final episode had five contestants left: Alexander, Charlotte, Frankie, Leanna, and Jake. Charlotte was the only Traitor remaining, while Frankie had gained special powers that allowed her to see who was a Traitor or Faithful.In this season's opener, host Claudia Winkleman announced a twist for the finale - the final Faithfuls would have to rely on their instincts to figure out if any Traitors were left in the castle. This added an extra layer of complexity and suspense to the game. The show has been a huge hit with 25 contestants competing over three weeks, and the finale was no exception.The Traitors game show is all about deception, where strangers are split into Faithfuls and Traitors. Each night, the Traitors choose a Faithful to eliminate while the Faithfuls work together to take out the Traitors. This season saw four women chosen as Traitors at different points in the show.The Traitors series saw Charlotte emerge as the only Traitor in the final episode. She had initially added Freddie to her ranks, but he left after just one night, leaving Charlotte alone. The show's contestants underwent various challenges and twists throughout the game, including a scene from Mission: Impossible-inspired finale challenge.The remaining contestants in the UK version of "The Traitors" continued their strategy, with Frankie and Jake making a joint decision to eliminate another player. Alexander was then voted off, securing his spot as a non-winner. After this move, the group decided to vote again, leading to Frankie's elimination. The finale revealed that Jake and Leanne were both members of the Faithful alliance, earning them a shared victory.The Traitors Season 3 continues with several weeks left until a winner is crowned. Despite this, some spoilers have emerged that may give fans an idea of the competition's dynamics. In The Traitors Season 3, reality TV stars are divided into two factions - Faithful and Traitors - in a Scottish castle. Only three episodes have been released so far, with 12 expected by the end of the season.Fans have been speculating about potential alliances, and one theory suggests that Dylan Efron and Derrick Levasseur may form a strong bond on the show. If this is true, it could mean they'll last longer in the competition and potentially win the grand prize. Another pair, Britney Haynes and Danielle Reyes, have also been spotted together in promotional materials, which might indicate that they make it far into the series.The Traitors Season 3 is now streaming on Peacock, with new episodes dropping every Thursday at 9 p.m. ET.BBC's "The Traitors" Season 3 Kicks Off with a Shocking Twist: Charlotte Emerges as the Last Survivor
