This initiative aims to reduce household consumption and support European industry by providing an immediate discount on the purchase price of selected appliances. The mechanism is designed to simplify access to the benefit, avoiding long waits and bureaucratic complications.Large appliances eligible for the bonusTo qualify for the 2025 bonus, it's necessary to replace an obsolete appliance with a new one featuring a higher energy class. This measure only applies to large appliances like refrigerators, washing machines, air conditioners, stoves, and other devices that significantly impact household energy consumption. Products must be brand new, produced within the European Union, and meet specific requirements to support local industries and protect workers in the sector.Used or refurbished appliances are not eligible for the bonus. Additionally, to access the contribution, it's mandatory to dismantle and recycle the replaced appliance, which must belong to the same category as the new one and have a lower energy class. This double obligation ensures that the intervention has a significant impact on reducing energy waste and domestic pollution caused by outdated devices.This European production condition delayed the publication of the measure. In recent months, the scarcity of high-efficiency made-in-Italy models threatened to shift the benefit towards foreign brands, altering market equilibriums.Getting the voucher and using itAnyone deciding to replace their appliance must connect to the digital platform PagoPA and generate an electronic voucher. This code must be presented to the retailer at the time of purchase, who will apply a 30% discount on the selling price, up to a maximum of 100. For families with an ISEE income below 25,000, the bonus ceiling increases to 200.The process is simple and direct: the consumer avoids waiting for reimbursement or presenting complex fiscal declarations. Just provide the purchase invoice, receipt of recycling, and voucher to access the instant discount in the invoice. After applying the discount, retailers recover the amount directly from the state through automatic procedures. This system streamlines practices and encourages immediate purchase, as the beneficiary does not need to anticipate the entire cost or wait for months for tax reimbursement.The government is offering a bonus for people who are renovating their homes, which can be combined with other state aid programs. This bonus applies to large appliances that consume more energy and includes items such as refrigerators, washing machines, dryers, and air conditioning units. However, it does not apply to small electrical devices like vacuum cleaners, blenders, or portable microwaves.The goal of the program is to promote the use of energy-efficient appliances that can reduce environmental impact and support European manufacturers. The selection process aims to direct public funding towards products that can make a concrete reduction in energy consumption and renew the existing appliance pool with more modern and less energy-intensive devices.The bonus program for 2025 will likely become operational by the end of the second quarter. The government has allocated 50 million euros, which is expected to cover approximately 300,000 subsidized purchases. Once the maximum spending limit is reached, the program will no longer be active unless there is a new refinancing effort.Homeowners with outdated appliances should start planning their replacements now to take advantage of the bonus. In recent years, the use of home renovation bonuses has grown significantly across Italy, driven by incentives for energy savings and construction industry growth. However, some irregular practices have developed behind certain subsidies, which have caught the attention of law enforcement authorities.Recent court decisions have clarified what behaviors constitute criminal offenses and what penalties apply to taxpayers and operators involved. This article summarizes the key points from these cases, providing an updated and accurate overview of the topic.The core issues surrounding tax credits for home renovation bonuses involve cases where the credit is created in a fictional or artificial manner. When a taxpayer generates a credit that does not correspond to actual expenses incurred or work completed, they commit the crime of undue receipt of public funding. This illegal practice deprives the state of resources by exploiting fiscal incentives designed to support home renovations.Il credito punibile, ma anche chi lo emette per giustificare spese false. Le fatture false sono prova della frode e integrano il reato di falsificazione. La procedura prevede la creazione di documenti interlocutori per dare un'apparenza di legittimit .Italy is introducing a new measure to help millions of families with their energy costs.
