

Programa Compartilhar Clima launches its 2nd cycle, strengthening the value chain's decarbonization journey

May 6, 2026

Following a successful 2025, with more than 75% engagement from participating suppliers, Suzano is taking another important step in its sustainability agenda with the launch of the 2nd cycle of Compartilhar Program Climate, an initiative jointly developed by the Sustainability and Procurement teams to drive climate progress across our value chain.

More than a continuation of the program, this new cycle reinforces a strategic company direction: to consistently advance our climate commitments, especially in reducing Scope 3 emissions, it is essential to foster development alongside our business partners. By doing so, we strengthen a value chain that is increasingly resilient, efficient, and competitive, ready to face the challenges of the transition to a low-carbon economy.

And the results are already becoming visible in practice.

During the launch event, a testimonial from one of the participating suppliers highlighted an important reality faced by many small and medium-sized companies, which often do not have dedicated Climate or ESG teams. The experience shared demonstrated that, when guidance, training, and support are provided, transformation happens and generates tangible impacts throughout the value chain.

This is precisely the purpose of Compartilhar Program Climate:

to encourage, support, and accelerate our partners' decarbonization journey by expanding knowledge, strengthening capabilities, and creating opportunities for each organization to advance at its own pace.

When every supplier progresses, even through small actions, the collective impact grows and contributes to an even greater positive outcome.
