

Male

Recommended
Position:
Middle rib cage

Notes on Positioning

- Position the electrodes according to the picture.
- Make sure that the electrodes are not positioned too high, the lower electrodes should be positioned as close as possible to the horizontal heart axis.

Male

Alternative Position One

Notes on Positioning

- Position the electrodes according to the picture.
- Make sure that the electrodes are not positioned too high, the lower electrodes should be positioned as close as possible to the horizontal heart axis.
- When placed on the left chest: Make sure that the electrodes are not positioned too far to the left, the right electrode poles should be placed as close as possible to the sternum.

Male

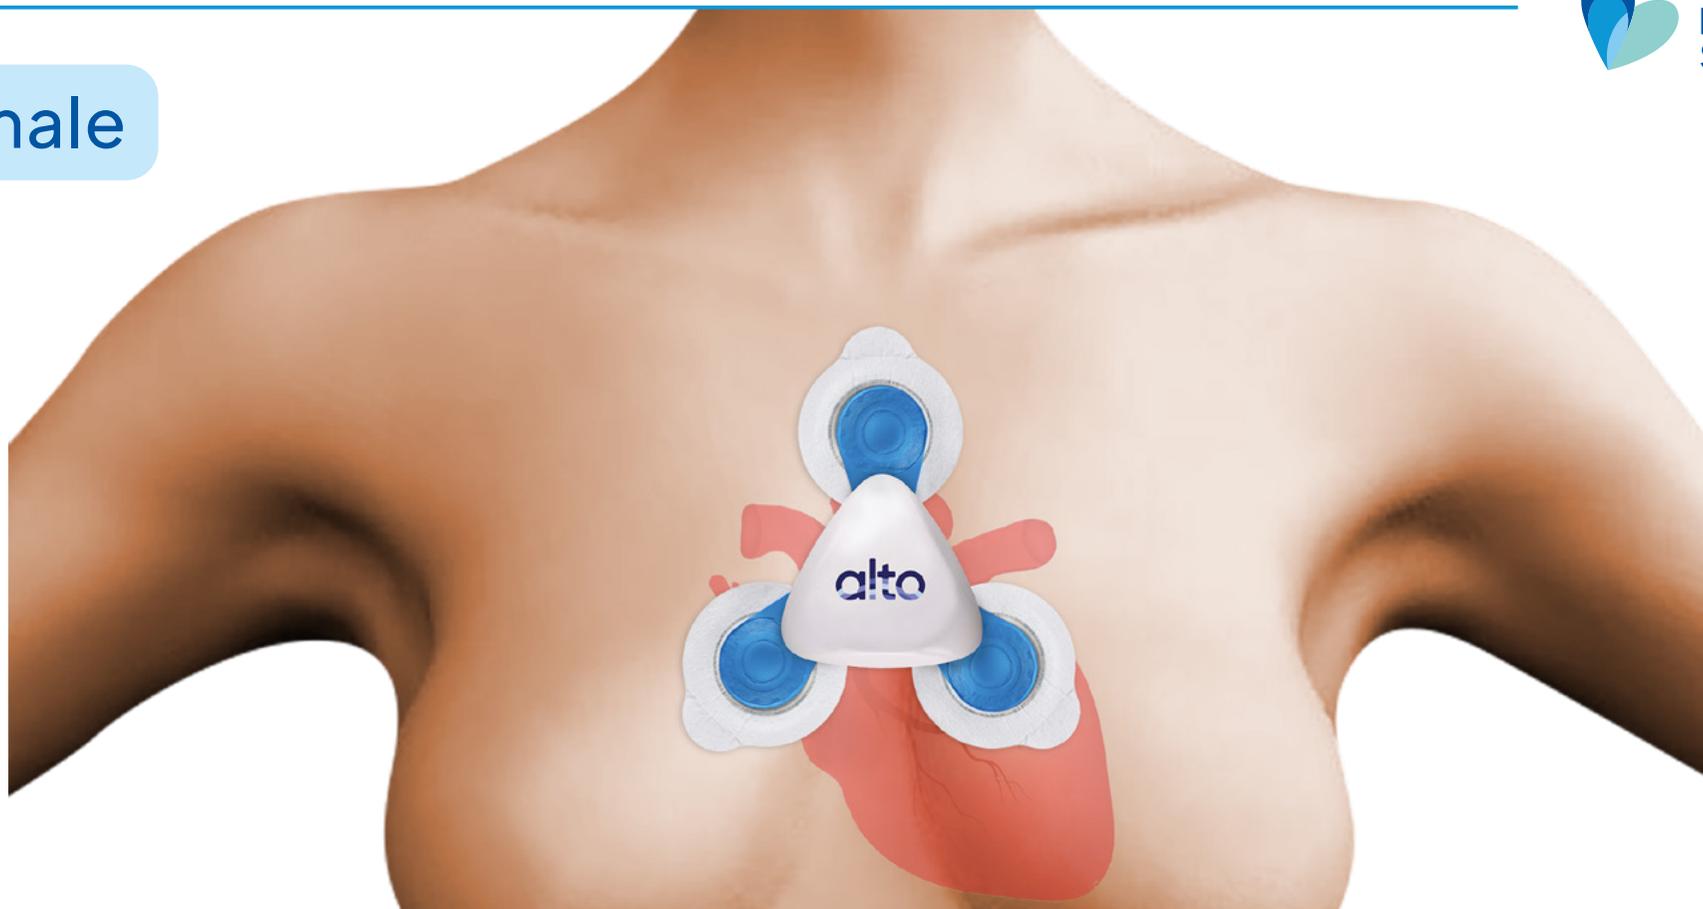

Alternative Position Two

Notes on Positioning

- Position the electrodes according to the picture.
- Make sure that the electrodes are not positioned too high, the lower electrodes should be positioned as close as possible to the horizontal heart axis.
- When placed on the left chest: Make sure that the electrodes are not positioned too far to the left, the right electrode poles should be placed as close as possible to the sternum.

Female

Recommended
Position:
Middle rib cage

Notes on Positioning

- Position the electrodes according to the picture.
- Make sure that the electrodes are not positioned too high, the lower electrodes should be positioned as close as possible to the horizontal heart axis.
- Positioning is the same for all breast sizes.

Female

Alternative Position One

Notes on Positioning

- Position the electrodes according to the picture.
- Make sure that the electrodes are not positioned too high, the lower electrodes should be positioned as close as possible to the horizontal heart axis.
- When placed on the left chest: Make sure that the electrodes are not positioned too far to the left, the right electrode poles should be placed as close as possible to the sternum.
- Positioning is the same for all breast sizes.

Female

Alternative Position Two

Notes on Positioning

- Position the electrodes according to the picture.
- Make sure that the electrodes are not positioned too high, the lower electrodes should be positioned as close as possible to the horizontal heart axis.
- When placed on the left chest: Make sure that the electrodes are not positioned too far to the left, the right electrode poles should be placed as close as possible to the sternum.
- Positioning is the same for all breast sizes.