3.4. If, due to technical, operational, or other reasons, the Company credits the Client with funds in excess of the requested withdrawal amount, the Client must immediately return the excess funds to the Company. The Company reserves the right to reverse such transactions without prior notice.

- d) If the Client maintains a short position on the ex-dividend date and does not have sufficient free equity to cover the debit, the Company may close open positions to cover the adjustment.
- e) The Client accepts that monitoring corporate actions, including ex-dividend dates, is solely their responsibility. The Company is under no obligation to notify the Client of such events.
- f) Dividends and other distributions may be received net of applicable taxes, as the Company may hold instruments in pooled accounts. The Client accepts that withholding rates applied may differ from those available if the instruments were held in the Client's own name.

3.8. The Client acknowledges that the prices of over-the-counter (OTC) instruments offered by the Company may differ from quotes published by other brokers or from prices on regulated markets for the same underlying asset.

3.9. Certain instruments may, from time to time, be unavailable for short selling, either temporarily or permanently, at the Company's discretion.

3.10. Negative Balance Protection.

- a) The Company's trading systems are designed with safeguards intended to protect Clients from incurring negative balances under normal market conditions. Margin monitoring functionality is provided to all Clients. Where account equity falls below 100% of the required margin, the account enters margin call mode. If margin level falls to or below 50%, the Company will begin closing open positions automatically, starting with the most unprofitable, at prevailing market prices.
- b) At its discretion, the Company may credit a Client's account to eliminate a negative balance incurred in the ordinary course of trading. This protection applies only to Private Clients.
- c) Negative Balance Protection shall not apply where losses are caused by:
 - force majeure events (including natural disasters, acts of terrorism, war, civil unrest, or regulatory actions);
 - abnormal market conditions or extraordinary volatility;
 - debits relating to Company fees, commissions, or charges;
 - the Client's breach of this Agreement, market rules, or applicable laws.
- d) The Company reserves the right to offset balances across multiple accounts held by the same Client (including joint accounts) to offset obligations before applying Negative Balance Protection.
- e) Clients are expected to maintain appropriate margin levels at all times as their primary method of risk management.

4. Responsibilities and Duties of the Parties

4.1. The Company bears no responsibility for any unauthorised use of the Client's login credentials or passwords for accessing its services. If the Client suspects unauthorised access to their Personal area or trading platforms, they must notify the Company immediately through any available communication channel. Upon receipt of such notification, the Company will block the Client's Personal area until the matter has been investigated and clarified.

4.2. The Client remains solely responsible for all transactions executed in their trading account, whether or not authorised by them, until the Company has been duly notified of any unauthorised use in accordance with clause 4.1.

4.3. The Client undertakes to refrain from engaging in any transaction that violates applicable laws, regulations, rules, or recognized norms of conduct.

4.4. The Company does not target and do not provide services to residents or citizens in any country where such distribution or use of its services would contravene

In such cases, open positions may be closed by the Company without prior notice.

4.9. The Client acknowledges and agrees that the Company may disclose their data and documents to law enforcement authorities, financial institutions, regulators, or other counterparties upon official request, in compliance with applicable laws and regulations, including anti-money laundering and counter-terrorist financing obligations.

Similarly, the Client must not use trading methods that rely on identifying and exploiting deficiencies or inefficiencies in market liquidity. The Company reserves the right, at its sole discretion, to revoke, amend, or cancel any transactions that it reasonably determines were executed in violation of this clause.

4.14. All information published on the Company's website is provided for informational and illustrative purposes only. The Company accepts no liability for Client activity or inactivity arising from reliance on such information.

5.5 The Company shall not be liable for any trading losses that result from delays in the processing of deposits. The Client remains solely responsible for ensuring that sufficient funds are available in their account at all times to meet margin requirements and should not rely on last-minute deposits to maintain open positions.

5.6 Where funds are deposited in a currency other than the base currency of the account, the Company shall convert the amount at its internal exchange rate applicable at the time of processing.

5.7 If a deposit is made but not credited to the Client's account, the Client must notify the Company and provide transfer details. Deposits of this nature will be processed manually once the Company confirms receipt of funds.

5.9 If the trading activity on a Client's account is deemed insufficient relative to deposit levels, the Company may, at its discretion, restrict withdrawals to the original funding source. Where withdrawal through the original method is not possible, the Company may charge the Client for any processing costs incurred in relation to the initial deposit.

5.10 The Client is solely responsible for the accuracy of payment details provided in withdrawal requests.

8.2 Each transaction entered into shall be between the Client and the Company as principals. The Client will be directly and personally responsible for fulfilling all obligations arising from such transactions, regardless of whether dealings occur directly with the Company or through an agent. Unless otherwise agreed in writing, the Company shall not recognize or accept any undisclosed third party as a Client.

8.3 Dealings between the Client and the Company will be conducted strictly on an execution-only basis, unless otherwise explicitly agreed in writing.

8.4 Unless expressly provided in this Agreement, the Company is under no obligation:

- (a) to assess the suitability of any transaction for the Client;
- (b) to monitor or advise the Client on the status of any transaction;
- (c) to issue margin calls; or
- (d) to close out any open position of the Client.

8.5 The Client shall not request investment advice, recommendations, or opinions from the Company regarding any transaction. The Company may, at its sole discretion, provide factual information regarding the procedures or risks of a transaction or general market information. Such information shall not constitute investment advice or a recommendation and must not be relied upon as such.

8.6 The Client acknowledges and agrees that

- (a) any information provided by the Company does not take into account the Client's objectives, financial situation, or needs;
- (b) any communication from the Company does not amount to a recommendation; an
- (c) prior to entering any transaction, the Client must ensure they fully understand the risks involved.

8.7 The Client agrees to rely exclusively on their own judgment when opening, closing, or refraining from transactions with the Company.

8.8 Except in cases of fraud, willful default, or negligence, the Company shall not be liable for any loss (including indirect, consequential, or opportunity losses) incurred by the Client as a result of reliance on information, advice, or statements provided by the Company.

8.9 Subject to the Company's rights under this Agreement to void or close out transactions, any transaction executed by the Client shall remain valid and binding, even if entered following an error or inaccurate information.

8.10 The Client acknowledges that information displayed in the contract specifications or on the Company's website may be indicative only and subject to change. The most accurate details will be those displayed in the Client's account on the trading platform.

8.11 The Company reserves the right to require the Client to reimburse any stamp duty or similar taxes arising from changes in law. The Company may also charge for the provision of market data, whether raw or derived, but will notify the Client in advance if such charges are applied.

8.12 The Company offers different account types, each with specific characteristics. Eligibility for certain account types may depend on the Client's experience and knowledge. The Company reserves the right to reclassify or convert a Client's account type if, acting reasonably, it determines a different account type is more suitable.

8.13 From time to time, the Company may introduce new services or financial products. Such services or products may be subject to additional or special conditions.

8.14 The Company strongly recommends that Clients first open and use a demo account to familiarize themselves with the trading platform before engaging in live trading.

8.15 The Company's electronic trading platforms may include but are not limited to:

- (a) MetaTrader 5, developed by MetaQuotes Ltd.
- (b) Born2trade X, developed by Match-Trade Technologies.
- (c) any other trading platforms offered by the Company.

As these platforms are provided by third-party vendors, the Company relies on such vendors for system updates, functionality, and maintenance.

8.16 The Company may exercise discretions under this Agreement which can affect the Client's transactions. The Client has no right to direct how the Company exercises such discretion. However, the Company will act reasonably and in accordance with applicable regulatory obligations when exercising its discretion.

9. Electronic Trading Services

9.1 The Client represents and warrants that they are familiar with all applicable laws, regulations, and requirements governing the use of electronic trading platforms and services (hereinafter "Electronic Trading Services"). The Client further undertakes to comply at all times with this Agreement and with all such requirements in the course of using the Company's Electronic Trading Services.

9.2 This section governs the Client's use of any Electronic Trading Service or related information service provided by the Company, whether directly or through third parties. Such services may include, without limitation:

- (a) placing or cancelling orders and transmitting other instructions;
- (b) obtaining price quotations, availability, or valuations of financial instruments;
- (c) receiving market data, reports, or other information relating to financial products;
- (d) accessing account balances, trading history, and confirmations of executed transactions.

9.3 The Company has no obligation to accept, execute, or cancel any order transmitted through an Electronic Trading Service. The Company bears no responsibility for instructions that are incomplete, inaccurate, delayed, or not received. Transactions will be executed strictly on the basis of instructions actually received by the Company.

9.4 The Client authorises the Company to act on any electronic instruction submitted through the Electronic Trading Service using the Client's security credentials ("Security Data"), whether or not such instruction was authorised by the Client.

9.5 Unless otherwise agreed in writing, once received, an electronic instruction may not be amended or revoked. The Client is solely responsible for the authenticity, accuracy, and completeness of all instructions sent through the Electronic Trading Service.

9.6 The Company may, at its sole discretion and without prior notice, suspend, restrict, or terminate the Client's access to any or all Electronic Trading Services. The Company may also vary the scope, composition, or limits of such services at any time, including setting thresholds on trading activity, where it deems necessary to protect orderly market operations or comply with applicable regulations.

9.7 All prices displayed on the Electronic Trading Service are indicative only and may change at any time. Final execution prices will reflect the prevailing market conditions at the time the order is processed.

9.8 The use of automated or high-frequency trading tools, such as algorithmic trading software, mass data entry systems, or similar, is only permitted with the Company's prior written consent. Where electronic communications are established through protocols such as FIX API, the Client must adhere to the Company's published rules of engagement and is responsible for testing such integrations prior to live use.

9.9 The Client accepts responsibility for monitoring the performance and limitations of any automated trading system or software used. If the system generates excessive or disruptive message traffic ("Hyperactivity"), the Company reserves the right to disable or suspend the Client's trading account without liability for losses or foregone profits.

9.10 Electronic Trading Services may be proprietary platforms provided by the Company (including Born2trade X developed by Match-Trade Technologies) or third-party platforms (such as MetaTrader 5). Where access is granted, the Client is provided with a non-exclusive, revocable, and non-transferable license to use the platform strictly for personal trading purposes in accordance with this Agreement.

9.11 All intellectual property rights in the Electronic Trading Services, including software, systems, and market data, remain the exclusive property of the Company or its licensors. The Client acquires no ownership rights by using these services and must not sell, lease, distribute, or disclose any part of the system to third parties.

9.12 The Client must take reasonable steps to ensure that no viruses, worms, software bombs, or similar harmful code are introduced through their use of the Electronic Trading Services. The Client must keep their Security Data strictly confidential and must notify the Company immediately in the event of unauthorised access or suspected compromise.

9.13 The Client acknowledges that electronic systems are subject to risks including latency, interruptions, errors, failures of hardware, software, or communication links, and market delays. The Company shall not be liable for losses arising from such events, including delays in the processing, execution, or cancellation of orders.

9.14 The Client is responsible for ensuring that alternative arrangements are available (e.g., telephone orders) in case the Electronic Trading Services become unavailable or disrupted.

9.15 Where an order cannot be placed, amended, or cancelled due to communication failure, interruption, or malfunction, neither the Company nor the Client shall be liable for resulting losses, without prejudice to any other rights in this Agreement.

9.16 The Company and its licensors retain all proprietary rights in the software, systems, and databases comprising the Electronic Trading Services. The Client must not claim, copy, or otherwise assert any rights in such materials.

10. Manifest Errors

10.1. A Manifest Error refers to an obvious and significant mistake in pricing, execution, or other terms of a Transaction or Open Position that is reasonably identifiable as such by the Company.

10.2. If a Transaction or Open Position is determined to be based on a Manifest Error, the Company may, at its sole discretion and without prior consent from the Client, amend or adjust the terms of the Transaction or Open Position, or declare it void from the outset.

10.3. When amending the terms of a Transaction due to a Manifest Error, the Company will use its reasonable judgment to establish what the fair terms would have been at the time of execution had the error not occurred.

10.4. In determining whether a Manifest Error has occurred, the Company will act reasonably and may take into account factors such as the state of the underlying market, the accuracy and clarity of information received from third-party data providers, or any other relevant circumstances. The Client's reliance on a Transaction, including any commitments entered into or foregone, will not affect this determination.

10.5. In the absence of fraud, willful misconduct, or gross negligence, the Company will not be liable for any loss, cost, claim, demand, or expense suffered by the Client as a result of a Manifest Error or the Company's subsequent actions to remedy it.

10.6. If the Client has received funds or benefits resulting from a Manifest Error, such amounts will be deemed immediately repayable to the Company. The Client agrees to return these amounts within the timeframe specified in a written demand issued by the Company.

10.7. In the event of a Manifest Error, the Company may, without limitation, take any of the following actions:

- (a) amend the terms of the Transaction to reflect fair market conditions;
- (b) close out the Transaction and any related Open Positions;
- (c) adjust or suspend the Client's Account;
- (d) declare the Transaction void from inception;
- (e) take no action to amend or void the Transaction; or
- (f) take any other reasonable action deemed appropriate in the circumstances.

10.8. The Company will exercise its rights in respect of Manifest Errors in good faith, reasonably, and as promptly as possible once aware of the error.

10.9. Where practicable, the Company will provide prior notice of corrective action. If prior notice is not possible, notice will be given as soon as reasonably practicable thereafter.

10.10. To the fullest extent permitted by law, and except in cases of fraud or gross negligence by the Company, the Company shall not be liable for any direct, indirect, or consequential loss, including loss of profits, arising from or connected to a Manifest Error.

11. Price Manipulation, Gaming, and Market Abuse

11.1. The Client must not engage in any form of price manipulation, gaming, market abuse, or market misconduct when using the Company's services. This includes, but is not limited to, exploiting latency in price feeds, manipulating execution processes, or using trading strategies designed to take unfair advantage of the Company's Electronic Trading Services.

11.2. If the Company reasonably believes that the Client has engaged, or attempted to engage, in such prohibited practices, the Company may, at its sole discretion and without prior notice, take one or more of the following actions:

- (a) enforce the Transaction(s) against the Client, particularly where they result in the Client owing funds to the Company;
- (b) declare any or all Transactions void from inception;
- (c) withhold funds the Company suspects to be derived from such activity;
- (d) close out the Client's Account and any Open Positions;
- (e) adjust the Client's Account to remove the impact of the prohibited activity;
- (f) suspend the Client's access to services;
- (g) terminate this Agreement immediately; and
- (h) take any other action the Company considers necessary to protect its interests.

11.3. The Company will exercise the above rights reasonably and in good faith. The Client acknowledges and agrees that any losses, damages, or costs arising from corrective measures taken under this section shall be borne solely by the Client.

12. Swap-Free Instruments

12.1 The Company may, at its sole discretion, offer Clients the option to trade certain instruments on a swap-free basis ("Swap-Free Instruments"), depending on the type of trading account selected and subject to the Company's published terms.

12.2 The swap-free status of such instruments is provided solely as a good-faith facility. Clients are strictly prohibited from using Swap-Free Instruments to gain unfair advantage, including but not limited to avoiding negative swap charges or generating profits that would otherwise result from swap accruals. Clients must not request the reimbursement of any swap amounts that would have been incurred had the instruments been subject to standard swap conditions.

12.3 The Company reserves the right, at its sole discretion, to revoke or amend the swap-free status of any trading account or instrument at any time, without prior notice or obligation to justify its decision. Where the Company reasonably suspects misuse, abuse, or fraudulent activity relating to Swap-Free Instruments, it may, without limitation:

(a) revoke the swap-free status with immediate effect and apply standard swap terms retroactively or prospectively as deemed appropriate;

(b) correct and recover any un-accrued swaps, interest charges, or related costs that would otherwise have been incurred;

(c) close any or all of the Client's trading accounts and nullify transactions carried out under misuse of Swap-Free Instruments; and

(d) cancel any profits realised from such activity.

12.4 Examples of misuse include, but are not limited to: carrying large or extended overnight positions in Swap-Free Instruments that would ordinarily attract negative swap charges; engaging in cash-back arbitrage; or any other trading practice the Company considers to be manipulative, abusive, or inconsistent with the intended purpose of Swap-Free trading.

12.5 Any misuse or abuse of Swap-Free Instruments shall also be treated as a breach under Section 12: Price Manipulation, Gaming, and Market Abuse, and may trigger the corrective actions outlined therein, in addition to the measures described in this section.

12.6 The Client acknowledges and accepts that the Company's determination of misuse or abuse under this section shall be final and binding.

13. Recording of Communications

13.1 The Company may record and/or maintain records of telephone conversations, electronic messaging, emails, live chat, internet communications, meetings, and any other communications with Clients. Such records shall remain the sole property of the Company and may be relied upon as conclusive evidence of the content of those communications. The Client acknowledges and agrees that the Company may provide copies or transcripts of such records to courts, regulators, or other governmental authorities where required, including in connection with any dispute between the Client and the Company under Section 6 (Dispute Resolution).

13.2 The Client accepts that, for technical or operational reasons, some communications may not be recorded or preserved. In addition, recordings and transcripts may be destroyed in accordance with the Company's data retention policies. Accordingly, the Client should not rely on the availability of such records.

13.3 Subject to applicable law and regulation, a copy of any records maintained under this section may be made available to the Client upon written request for a minimum period of seven (7) years from the date of the communication.

13.4 The Client may withdraw their consent to the recording of communications by notifying the Company in writing. However, the Client acknowledges that such recording is a regulatory requirement. Therefore, revocation of consent may render the Company unable to continue providing services to the Client, in which case access to the Company's trading facilities may be restricted or terminated.

14. Quotes and Pricing

14.1 Upon request, the Company will provide Clients with a bid and ask price ("our Quotes") for each Transaction. Such Quotes may be derived from comparable prices in the underlying market or, at the Company's discretion, may be proprietary prices determined by the Company.

14.2 The Client acknowledges that spreads may vary significantly depending on market conditions and are not fixed. Spreads may be wider or narrower than examples displayed on the Company's website, platform, or contract specifications, and there is no limit on how wide such spreads may be.

14.3 The Client further acknowledges that the spread applied when a Transaction is closed may differ from the spread prevailing at the time the Transaction was opened. All spreads are determined at the Company's reasonable discretion, reflecting prevailing market conditions.

14.4 Quotes provided by the Company are indicative and subject to change. Execution of Transactions will occur only at the actual Quote available at the time the Transaction is processed. There is no assurance that indicative Quotes displayed will match the final execution price, particularly where there is any delay in placing an order.

14.5 Quotes and Transactions are available only during the open market hours of the relevant exchange or market on which the underlying instruments are traded. The open hours of such exchanges may be found on the relevant exchange's website or by contacting the Company.

14.6 The Company reserves the right, at its sole discretion and without prior notice, to impose limits or restrictions on Financial Products relating to specific underlying instruments. Such measures may be applied, for example, when the market for the instrument becomes illiquid, when trading has been suspended, or when significant disruptions occur in the underlying market or in the Electronic Trading Services.

14.7 The Client understands that market prices and other data viewed through the Company's electronic trading platform, or through independent facilities arranged by the Client, may not be current or may differ from the prices quoted by the Company.

14.8 If the Client accesses their account or uses the Electronic Trading Services outside of trading hours, the Client acknowledges that any orders submitted may only be processed once the relevant exchange or market reopens. Prices at that time may differ materially from the prices available when the order was placed.

14.9 The Company may, at its discretion, notify the Client of certain instruments for which no Quotes will be provided, limits on the amounts for which Quotes will be issued, or other conditions that may apply. Such notifications are indicative only and shall not bind the Company.

14.10 Quotes may be provided verbally (including by telephone), electronically through the Company's trading platform, or by any other method notified by the Company from time to time.

14.11 The provision of a Quote by the Company does not constitute an offer to open or close a Transaction at the stated levels.

14.12 Transactions may only be executed at the Quotes provided by the Company. The Company reserves the right, acting reasonably, to accept or reject any order at any time prior to execution or acknowledgement of withdrawal of the order.

15. Know Your Client and Anti-Money Laundering (AML)

15.1 The Client acknowledges and agrees:

(a) that the Company is legally required to identify and verify all Clients before opening or maintaining an account, in compliance with applicable anti-money laundering and counter-terrorism financing laws and regulations ("AML Laws");

(b) to provide all documents, information, and assistance reasonably requested by the Company to complete identity verification and ongoing due diligence;

(c) that if the Company is unable to properly verify the Client, it reserves the right to reject the account application, suspend or restrict access to services, and shall not be liable for any consequences of such action;

(d) that the Company may delay, block, restrict, or refuse to process any payment, transaction, or instruction if it reasonably suspects that doing so may breach AML Laws or any applicable law or regulation in Saint Lucia or any other jurisdiction. The Company shall not be liable for any loss, delay, or expense arising in such circumstances;

(e) that throughout the duration of this Agreement, the Company reserves the right to take any action it deems necessary if it suspects the Client is in breach of AML Laws, including but not limited to suspension or termination of the Client's account;

(f) that all funds transferred to the Company and all instructions issued by the Client must not breach AML Laws or any other applicable law in Saint Lucia or any other jurisdiction.

15.2 The Client further agrees to provide any information or documentation required for compliance with international tax reporting obligations, including but not limited to the Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act (FATCA) and the OECD Common Reporting Standard (CRS).

15.3 The Client acknowledges and agrees that if identity verification or the review of source of funds is incomplete or unsatisfactory, the Company may, at its sole discretion, freeze or restrict access to the Client's funds and trading account until such verification is successfully completed.

16. Hedged Positions

16.1 The Company may, at its sole discretion, permit Clients to establish Hedged Positions in certain financial instruments. A Hedged Position occurs where the Client simultaneously holds equal or opposing positions in the same instrument (e.g., one long position and one short position). Hedged Positions may be classified as either Fully Hedged Positions or Partially Hedged Positions.

16.2 Where the Company permits Fully Hedged Positions, it may reduce the margin requirement for such positions to zero. For Partially Hedged Positions, the Company may reduce the applicable margin requirement at its discretion. The Company reserves the right to reinstate margin requirements at any time, without prior notice, notwithstanding any previous reduction.

16.3 The Client acknowledges and agrees that if margin requirements have been reduced for a Hedged Position and the Client subsequently closes any leg of that position, the full margin requirement for the remaining open position will apply immediately. If sufficient margin is not available, the Company may close out the position in accordance with this Agreement.

16.4 Even where the Company grants a margin reduction for Fully Hedged Positions (including a margin requirement of zero), the Client remains subject to stop-out protection. If account equity falls to negative values, the Company may automatically close positions until margin levels are restored to sufficient levels.

16.5 The Company reserves the right to close all or part of any Hedged Position, without prior notice, at the prevailing market price where it reasonably believes that:

- (a) the Hedged Position is being abused by the Client;
- (b) the Hedged Position does not represent genuine trading activity; or
- (c) the Hedged Position constitutes suspicious or prohibited trading behaviour.

16.6 Where an account is found to be involved in suspicious activity, the Company may, with or without prior notice:

- (a) place the account under investigation;
- (b) suspend or terminate the Client's access to services;
- (c) reverse profits or benefits derived from the suspicious activity; and/or
- (d) close or terminate any account associated with such practices.

17. Cryptocurrency (where applicable)

Cryptocurrency-related services (including, but not limited to, cryptocurrency deposits, withdrawals, and trading in cryptocurrency derivatives such as CFDs) carry specific and heightened risks compared to traditional financial instruments. You should not engage in any cryptocurrency-related activity unless you fully understand these risks, accept the possibility of a total loss of your investment, and have the financial capacity and risk tolerance to sustain such loss.

17.1. Cryptocurrency Deposits, Withdrawals and Transfers

17.1.1. Where the Company permits funding or withdrawals in cryptocurrency, such transactions are effected via one or more third-party service providers, payment processors, or blockchain networks (the "Crypto Channels"). The Client acknowledges that cryptocurrency transfers are irreversible by design and are not subject to recall in the same way as bank transfers or card payments.

17.1.2. The Client is solely responsible for:

- Using the correct wallet address and correct network/blockchain (e.g., mainnet vs. sidechain or layer-2),
- Ensuring that the wallet used is under their control and not subject to third-party restrictions,
- Verifying any payment instructions provided by the Company or its payment partners.

The Company shall not be liable for any loss of funds resulting from transfers sent to an incorrect, incompatible, or mis-typed address, or to the wrong network, or to a wallet which the Client does not control.

17.1.3. Cryptocurrency transactions are subject to blockchain and network conditions, including (but not limited to) congestion, increased network fees, delays in confirmation, chain reorganisations, forks, and protocol changes. Such events may lead to delays, partial execution, or non-completion of transactions. The Client accepts that:

- Transaction confirmation times are outside the Company's control;
- The Company cannot guarantee any specific processing time for crypto deposits or withdrawals;
- In certain circumstances, funds may be significantly delayed or become permanently untraceable or unrecoverable.

17.1.4. The value of cryptocurrency at the time of deposit or withdrawal is subject to extreme price volatility. The amount of fiat currency credited to or debited from the Client's account is determined by the Company's or its payment provider's applicable exchange rate at the time of processing, which may differ from market prices visible on exchanges. The Client accepts the risk of adverse exchange rate movements before and during processing.

17.1.5. Cryptocurrency funds held, processed, or converted in the context of deposits and withdrawals do not benefit from any deposit protection or investor compensation schemes that may apply to regulated fiat accounts or financial instruments.

17.1.6. Cryptocurrency transfers may be subject to anti-money laundering (AML), counter-terrorist financing (CTF), sanctions screening, and other regulatory checks. The Company may:

- Request additional information or documentation on the Source of Funds (SOF) and Source of Wealth (SOW);
- Delay, block, or reject transactions where suspicion arises or regulatory obligations require;
- Report suspicious transactions to relevant authorities.

The Client acknowledges that such measures may result in delays or the refusal of deposits and withdrawals, and the Company shall not be liable for resulting losses, opportunity costs, or missed trading opportunities.

17.1.7. In the event of technical failures or disruptions affecting exchanges, blockchain networks, payment processors, or other infrastructure providers, there is a risk of partial or total loss of cryptocurrency used for funding or withdrawals. While the Company will act with due care in selecting service providers, it is not responsible for failures, insolvency, security breaches, or mismanagement on the part of such third parties, provided the Company has exercised reasonable due diligence.

17.2. Trading in Cryptocurrency Contracts for Difference (CFDs)

17.2.1. Where the Company offers trading in cryptocurrency Contracts for Difference (CFDs), the Client acknowledges that such instruments are highly speculative and involve an elevated level of risk. Cryptocurrency CFDs are derived from the price of one or more underlying crypto-assets but:

- Do not grant ownership or any right, title, or interest in the underlying crypto-assets or blockchain networks;
- Are synthetic instruments whose pricing is provided by the Company's liquidity providers or pricing sources, which may differ from prices quoted on crypto exchanges.

17.2.2. Cryptocurrency markets are characterized by extreme volatility, wide and rapidly changing spreads, and the possibility of sudden price gaps. This may result in:

- Significant intraday price swings;
- Rapid increases in margin requirements;
- Slippage on order execution, including Stop Loss and Take Profit orders;
- Difficulty in closing or opening positions at desired levels.

The Client accepts that stop orders may not be effective in fast-moving or illiquid markets and may be executed at a price materially worse than requested (or not executed at all, in extreme circumstances).

17.2.3. Cryptocurrency CFD trading is conducted on a leveraged basis. Leverage can magnify both gains and losses. A relatively small market move may have a disproportionate impact on the Client's equity and may lead to:

- Margin calls;
- Automatic closure (Stop Out) of positions;
- Rapid and substantial loss of all funds allocated to crypto CFD trading.

17.2.4. The Client understands and accepts that cryptocurrency pricing and liquidity may be affected by:

- Exchange outages, hacking incidents, market manipulation, or wash trading;
- Forks, airdrops, protocol upgrades, and other technological events impacting the underlying blockchain;
- Regulatory actions, bans, restrictions, or enforcement measures in any jurisdiction;

- Changes in market sentiment, social media activity, or concentration of ownership among large holders.

Such events may cause sudden and severe price dislocations, widened spreads, or the temporary or permanent removal of certain crypto instruments from the Company's product offering.

17.2.5. The Company may, at its sole discretion and without prior notice, suspend, restrict, or terminate trading in any cryptocurrency CFD, adjust margin requirements, change trading hours, or impose position limits where it deems necessary for risk management, regulatory, or technical reasons. The Client acknowledges that such actions may prevent the opening of new positions or the modification of existing ones.

17.2.6. Technological and operational risks are inherent to cryptocurrency CFD trading, including:

- Platform disruptions, latency, or connectivity issues;
- Delayed or failed order transmission;
- Market data delays or inaccuracies;
- Discrepancies between displayed and executable prices.

The Client must ensure that they have reliable internet access and appropriate systems. The Company is not responsible for losses arising from the Client's hardware, software, or connectivity failures.

17.2.7. Cryptocurrencies and related derivatives are not suitable for all investors. They are only appropriate for Clients who:

- Have a high risk tolerance;
- Possess prior trading experience and sufficient understanding of crypto-assets and CFDs;
- Can financially withstand the total loss of the capital invested in such products.

By trading cryptocurrency CFDs with the Company, the Client confirms that they meet these criteria and that they are aware of, and accept, all of the above risks.
