Statements:

Ralf Müller:

“Our aim has always been to attract process plants to Chemiepark Knapsack that preserve material cycles and strengthen local circularity. With its expertise and advanced solution, matterr is an excellent fit for the site. This new investment shows that a traditional industrial location can keep evolving. We want to offer people long-term prospects here, and that requires technological innovation and close cooperation among companies at the Chemiepark Knapsack.”

Christoph Kappenhagen:

“We at YNCORIS, the operator of Chemiepark Knapsack, look forward to supporting matterr in focusing on its core competence: scaling up chemical recycling of PET. matterr will benefit from our energy and utility supply, the existing material network at Chemiepark Knapsack, as well as our plant security or fire brigade. As a technical service provider, we offer support in the planning and operation of the plant – all from single source.”
