— Dan Romanelli, SVP - Global Head of Business Development at Quoreka

THE PROBLEM

In commodity markets, sentiment can influence prices as much as fundamentals. Traditional sentiment analysis often lacks the speed, scale, and accuracy needed to guide trading decisions. Quoreka wanted to provide a solution to quantify sentiment in real time, giving market participants a clearer view of how news affects commodities.

THE SOLUTION: QINDEX POWERED BY BARCHART

Quoreka developed the Quoreka Sentiment Index (QIndex), an AI-driven commodity sentiment index that measures and quantifies sentiment from daily news coverage. Using advanced AI and large language models (LLMs), QIndex produces confidence-based sentiment scores across key commodities, giving market participants a real-time pulse on global sentiment.

"Markets move on sentiment as much as on fundamentals. With QIndex, firms can now track how global news is influencing commodity outlooks in real time and gain a window into how today's headlines are impacting tomorrow's markets," said Dan Romanelli, SVP - Global Head of Business Development at Quoreka. "By combining Quoreka's AI-driven analytics with Barchart's trusted market data and news, we're giving traders, analysts and risk managers a powerful new perspective on market dynamics."

At the core of QIndex is Barchart's comprehensive news and data feeds, providing the reliable, real-time foundation needed for accurate and actionable sentiment signals.
