

How Finscreener Supplies Their Users With the Most Accurate Market Data Possible

Finscreener is a global financial website providing various types of financial information, data, and news from stock, forex and commodity markets. The Finscreener website is filled with various stock screeners that are displayed in multiple different formats, such as tables, graphs, and heatmaps for investors and traders to utilize.

"Barchart's data is very accurate, which we very much appreciate. In addition to the data being accurate, the fact that Barchart's data is available via API makes it very easy-to-use, and those factors give us a strong competitive advantage."

— Peter Mařásek, CEO at Finscreener.com

THE PROBLEM

Finscreener.com was in search of a long term, stable partner who could provide them with both delayed and real-time market data in order to keep both their non-premium and premium users informed with reliable data feeds including news, fundamentals, financials, and technical analyses. They needed a provider that not only had accurate data, but they also needed this data to be easy-to-use.

THE SOLUTION

After exploring several different data provider options, Finscreener found that Barchart would be the best fit for them. With Barchart's data, Finscreener can supply both their non-premium users and their premium users with the best, most precise data possible. They receive the data in two time frequencies, with their premium users having access to real-time data, and their non-premium users having access to delayed data.

"We take pride in making our clients' businesses better and also making their lives easier," said Mark Haraburda, CEO of Barchart. "Our APIs do exactly that by providing data that they can rely on and that is also as easy as possible to implement," added Haraburda.

Now equipped with accurate financial data and easy-to-use APIs, Finscreener.com can conveniently provide all of their users with the market data and information they require in the various forms they need it.
