the mind viewed as a passive receptacle for sensory experience ===== The concept of passivity is multifaceted and can be applied to various domains. In psychology, it relates to an inactive or submissive role in a relationship, especially a sexual relationship. However, in other contexts, such as grammar and chemistry, passivity refers to the absence of active participation or reaction. passive voice is a grammatical construction where the subject of the sentence receives the action denoted by the verb, rather than performing it. This means that the subject is the recipient, not the source, of the action. The passive voice can be used to emphasize the action itself, rather than the actor who performed it. In surveillance, the passive voice is often used to describe actions or equipment that emit no energy capable of being detected. For example, "The camera emits no infrared radiation." The passive voice can also be used in military contexts to describe a form of verb where the grammatical subject is the object of the action, rather than the source. For instance, "Steps were taken by the government" is an example of the passive voice. In general, the passive voice can convey a sense of powerlessness or lack of agency on the part of the subject. However, it can also be used to emphasize the action itself, as in the phrase "The ball was thrown." The term "passive" comes from the Latin word "passivus," meaning "submissive" or "subject."
