The Matthew Wong Foundation's partnership with the Centre for Autism Services Alberta represents a meaningful and ongoing commitment to supporting autistic individuals and their families across Alberta. Rooted in a shared belief in the power of community, belonging, and mental wellness, this collaboration is making a lasting impact on the lives of children, teens, and adults with autism.

Through annual funding support, the Matthew Wong Foundation is helping the Centre offer a wide range of enriching programs — from art programs and the annual art show to skill-building workshops and inclusive social events and family nights. These initiatives not only provide opportunities for creative expression but also play a vital role in supporting the mental health and emotional wellbeing of participants.

Many families describe the Centre as a lifeline — a place where their loved ones feel safe, accepted, and understood. Thanks to the Matthew Wong Foundation's generosity, the Centre continues to be that place of belonging, offering connection, confidence, and hope to autistic individuals at every stage of life.

This partnership reflects the spirit of Matthew Wong's legacy: one that values art as a means of expression and healing, and that champions greater understanding and inclusion for the autistic community.

Together, the Matthew Wong Foundation and the Centre for Autism Services Alberta are creating more than programs — they're building a stronger, more compassionate future for autistic individuals and their families.
