The Van Gogh Museum has received a generous donation from the Matthew Wong Foundation. This contribution supports both the museum's exhibition programme and the education of future generations of researchers and curators.

The donation consists of two parts: one part for the Van Gogh Museum's endowment fund, and the other part for a specific named fund. The annual return from the endowment fund will contribute to the museum's exhibition programme. The named fund is specifically intended to support the education of researchers and curators affiliated with the museum.
