HOW WE TEACH

Highly qualified academics with extensive industry experience and solid research background

Our faculty members bring academic learning, on-the-job experience, research skills, and core competencies into our classrooms, helping students develop critical thinking skills. Our lecturers are leaders, preparing students for leadership in their respective endeavours.

Content resources are updated, relevant, and accessible

Our ever-growing and considerable content resources are designed to respond to the requirements of our discipline areas while further elevating our students' abilities. Students and academics alike can dig deep into them to learn or come up with solutions to their own real-life academic and professional challenges. Our digital platform makes all these data available at any given time.

Learning structure

While face-to-face education is preferred, virtual learning has become a necessity in today's rapidly changing world. During remote learning situations, we use virtual classrooms alongside traditional instruction to encourage open expression of ideas, friendly debates, research, and experimentation. This approach prepares students for success in their chosen fields, no matter the circumstances.

Trimester model

Our courses follow a 3+3+2 model. Three units are delivered in the first and second trimester each, and two units in the third trimester, equaling eight units per year. A typical trimester comprises 12 weeks of teaching, a week-long study break and an exam week.
