

Product Details

Hadjod, Vajravalli

It is a fast-growing, perennial vine native to India, Sri Lanka, and parts of Africa. It thrives in warm, tropical climates. The plant is easily identifiable by its distinct quadrangular, fleshy, and jointed stems, which are green and smooth with a slightly winged appearance. Small, greenish-white flowers bloom in clusters, followed by round, reddish berries. Hathjoda, meaning bone-setter, is derived from its traditional use in promoting bone healing, reflecting its long-standing importance in Ayurvedic medicine.

Medicinal Uses

Hathjoda is highly valued in Ayurveda for its bone-strengthening and anti-inflammatory properties. It is traditionally used to accelerate fracture healing, reduce swelling, and improve joint health. The plant contains rich amounts of vitamin C, calcium, and phytosterols, which promote collagen synthesis, enhancing bone mineral density and supporting tissue repair. Hathjoda also possesses analgesic and antioxidant properties, making it effective in managing conditions such as arthritis, osteoporosis, and joint pain. Additionally, it is used to support digestive health, aid weight management, and reduce oxidative stress. Due to its wide range of benefits, Cissus quadrangularis is often incorporated into Ayurvedic formulations and dietary supplements.
