Neem Chaal

Neem (Azadirachta indica) is a tall, evergreen tree from the Meliaceae family, native to India and widely grown in tropical regions. Reaching up to 15-20 meters in height, it has a straight trunk, rough dark bark, and spreading branches with pinnate green leaves. The tree produces clusters of fragrant white flowers and small olive-shaped fruits. Its bark, known as Neem Chaal, is highly valued in traditional healing systems for its strong medicinal properties, making Neem one of the most revered Ayurvedic trees.
