Mochras, Semal

Mochrus, obtained from the tree Bombax malabaricum (also known as Bombax ceiba), is a natural gum exudate valued in traditional medicine. The Bombax tree is a large, deciduous species native to India and Southeast Asia, growing up to 20-25 meters in height. It is easily recognized by its straight trunk, thorny bark, and bright red, showy flowers that bloom in spring. The gum, secreted from the stem, is collected, dried, and used for its medicinal and cooling properties.
